50-State Survey of Probable Electoral Balloting Indicates Final Efforts Could Be Crucial

West Germany's 2 Worlds: Sober North, Carefree South

MUNICH, West Germaoy — Georg Hagn-Sternecker, a 72-year-old Bavarian farmer, does not feel out of place wearing a pair of embroidered Lederhosen and a green Alpine hat in the ele-gant streets of Munich. "Why not?" he says. "Munich is Bavaria too, isn't

But, he says, he'd be ridiculed if he turned up dressed like that in any North German city—Hamburg, Bremen, Hanover—and in a Tyrolean hat. "Up north," he says, "they think we're hicks who have to knock down three liters of beer and a plate of sauerkraut with every meal."

In this country "southerners" and "northerners" belong to two almost separate worlds. On the national political scene, the cool, Protestant northerners dominate, with Helmut Schmidt, the Chancellor, who is from Hamburg, heading the list. In the national elections Oct. 3 the sentimental Roman Catholic southerners seemed to revolt. In Bavaria, 60 percent of the 6.7 million voters, like Mr. Hagn-Sternecker, supported the op-positioo to Mr. Schmidt, led here hy a typically Bavarian figure, the conservative Franz Josef Strauss; in Ham-burg, 63 percent of the voters supported the Government.

Identities and Pride

The Bavarians, in the south, feel a strong sense of separate cultural and regional identity, pride in being different from the "northerners" who have dominated in Bonn since Willy Brandt from Lubeck, became Chancellor in

"Northerners are a different breed,"
Mr. Hagn-Sternecker says, expressing a view shared by many Bavarians who feel they are looked down upon from the north.

"The Bavarians are just a different kind of people," said Fritz Pokropp, a 37-year-old mathematican who lives in the Hanseatic free-trading city of Hamburg, the cultural capital of the north; "the mentality is completely different from ours."

"it's a pretty place to visit," he said of Bavaria, "but I wouldn't want to

Franz Josef Str uss never campaigned in Hamburg. Helmut Schmidt went to Bavaria, but hefore crossing the border, he doffed the black, North German seafarer's cap that has become his trademark: The southerners would have laughed at it.

North-south differences are not new in Germany. They go back to the Middle Ages, and to the Protestant Reformation. Seventy-one percent of Bayaria's 10.8 milling people are Roman. ia's 10.8 millinn people are Roman Catholics; in the north, around Ham-burg, 70 percent are Protestants,

The northerners dress and eat differ-. ently. Bavarians like heavy dumplings and ham shoulders; the northerners lean to fish hash and don't go out much at all. Bavarians speak a lifting dialect that is hard for a fisherman from Ham-burg to understand.

'Sober' North, 'Carefree' South "Sober" is the word North Germans use most commonly to characterize themselves, and "carefree" Is their term for southerners. Helmut Schmidt ls, in a way, the North German incar-nate, and it's hard to picture him in Lederhosen.

Regional differences are preserved and even encouraged in the face of the modern trend to uniformity of the decentralized West German federal system. Still, there is a feeling here in the south that North Germans are "somehow superior" to the southerners, and the more conservative among the people here occasionally rebel.

Last spring, a Catholic newspaper in Regensburg suggested that the southern states secede and form a confederacy, below the Main River, made up of Bavaria, Baden - Württemberg Rhineland-Palatinate.

"We never had good relations with the Prussians," Mr. Hagn-Sternecker said, sitting at a plain wooden table in the living room of his farmhouse in the tiny village of Kreuth, in the foothills of the Bavarian Alps. "Sau-preis"—Prussian pig-sis etill the standpreis"—Prussian pig—is still the stand-ard Bavarian epithet.

Mr. Hagn-Sternecker's 17-acre farm, called "Sternecker" for ceoturies, supports oine milk cows and eight calves. On Sundays he rides bis bicycle to St. Leonhard's Church, built in 1490, for early mass. "Years ago," he recalls, "a farmer could never take a day off. but now I allow myself most of Sunday as a day of rest."

The other day was unseasonahiy warm and so he changed into his Lederhosen while his wife, Rosa, cooked dinner, remaining very much in the background of the kitchen while he and a friend, Joseph Wengermayer, the village teacher, sat and talked. An 1808 red wardrobe, bearing the painted images of Mary and Joseph, stood in the living-room correct. the living-room corner.

"We go with the times," Mr. Hagn-Sternecker said, "but we like to maintain traditions worth keeping-revolutionary change is just not our style."

The Bavarian landscape is billy cozy, and protected. The people like their colorful traditional ceremonies and ilke Mr. Hagn-Sternecker, many dress in the traditional green Trachten cos-tantes and dance to the same sort of the same sor And the Austrans love.

in 1945, Bavaria, which had been a semi-independent kingdom until 1918, was backward and agricultural. It hadwas backward and agricultural. It had-backward much since 1533, when a Bavarian historian wrote: "The Bavar-lans like to go to church and think more of farming and cattle than of making war. They do not respect traders, and traders do not do much business with them."

Luring Industry in War's Wake

The postwar state governments, all but one led by Mr. Strauss's party, the Christian Social Union, succeeded in attracting industry. Today Munich, the Bavarian capital, is cosmopolitan and elegant, and the biggest employer in the city is the giant manufacturer of electric locomotives, computer equip-menty and electrical installations, the Siemens A.G. Half of its 200,000 workers live in Bavaria.

One of its officers, Werner Osel, pointed out that the concern had to move its headquarters here from Berlin after World War II. "We're a sort of after World War II. "We're a sort of Prussian enterprise in the middle of Pavaria," he says. "Most people in Munich quit work at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon; we go on working until 5, just like any other day."

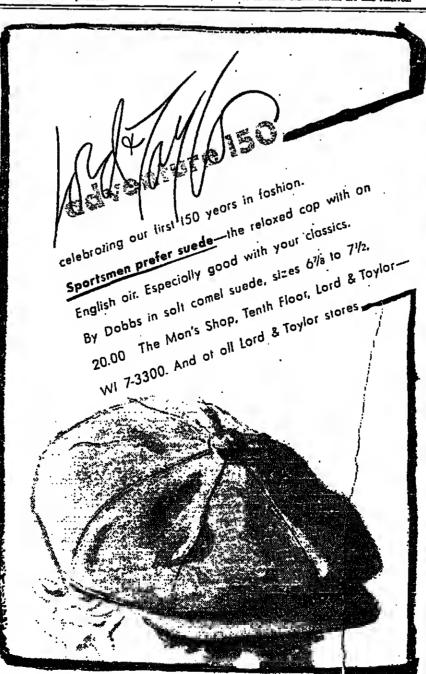

Nunich looks south, to the Alps and beyond them to Italy, whose artists and provided in the Pavarian property in the Pavarian architects were brought in by Bavarian monarchs a century ago to lay ont the classic lines of the city.

Five hundred miles to the north, peo-ple in the port city of Hamburg look beyond, to the sea, and the white mansions of the traders look more British than German, There was oever an aristocracy of blood in Hamburg. Only successful traders formed an upper class.

Angela and Fritz Pokropp live in a simple, modern apartment in the fash-ionable Blankenese section of Hamburg. Mr. Pokropp is a teacher at the city's university. His wife, a businessschool graduate, grew up in Hamburg. They both voted for Mr. Schmidt oo

Meeting in Lebanon Fails to Convene; Arab Force Awaited

Special to The New York Times

EEIRUT, Lebanon, Oct. 31—A meeting of military commanders of rival factions in Lebanon failed to materialize today as right-wing Christian leaders clearly indicated that an Arab peace plan for Lebanon could not be fulfilled before an Arab deterrent force arrived here.

Meanwhile, there were sporadic exchanges of gun and mortar fire in Beirut and its southern suburbs today. Rightist ratio stations said that the leftists and Palestinians were still receiving additional arms supplies and volunteers from Iraq and Ligra.

The meeting of rightist, leftist and Palestinian representatives was proposed by Maj. Gen. Mohammed Hassan Ghoneim, the Egyptian commander of the small Arab peacekeeping force already here. At first, Christian commanders objected to the site of the conference, a hotel in Moslem-held west Beirut proposed by General Choneim. They said later, however, that the Egyptian general was no longer empowered to bring about an end to the 18-month civil war.

The 2,300-man peace force under General Ghoneim came here four months ago merely to separate the combatants. Two Arab leadership conferences held in October expanded the force and gave it additional powers. Renamed the "deterrent force," it was also placed under the direct and personal orders of the Leba-

Christians Prefer the Syrians

BLAZERS

The rightists have attached special significance to the announcement that the Syrians would provide the majority of the proposed 30,000-man force. Though Syrian-rightist relations are not as good as they used to be, the Christians bave shown that they preferred Syrian troops to soldiers from other Arab countries.

Karim Pakradouni, a member of the leadership of the Phalangist Party, Lebanon's principal Christian paramilitary organization, was quoted in the press here today as saving: "Even if the conference takes place, its decisions will not be executed. General Ghoneim is the commander of the new deterrent force. The proposed timetable for reopening highways and withdrawing combatants cannot be fulfilled before the arrival by the end of this week of the Arab forces of which the Syrians will comprise the majority."

Liberal Party, the second largest rightwing grouping, said that the Arab leadership conferences had replaced General Ghoneim as commander of the Arab forces in Lebanon in favor of President Sarkis.

Gentrists in Egypt Win Heavily In the First Round of Elections

CAIRO, Oct. 31 (AP)—Egyptian voters have given the centrist political faction and by Prime Minister Mamdouh Salem of 112 parliamentary seats decided in the first round of elections, according to results announced today.

The rightist faction won four seats, the left two and independents 16. Runoff relections will be held Thursday for the hemaining elective seats in the 350-man Parliament. Runoffs were required in districts where no candidate gained at least per cent of the vote. The centrists are expected to win most of the runoffs.

Ten members of Parliament are to be appointed by President Anwar el-Sadat for a total of 360. The three factions are all part of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only authorized political party, with the independents aligning them-seives with the different factions.

The election marks the first time since the 1952 revolution against King Farouk in which Egyptians have been given a choice to say who would represent them. The late President Gamal Abdel Nasser put the country under one-party rule and presented voters with lists of approved party candidates for ratification.

Poor Weather Hampers West Irian Relief Effort

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Oct. 31 (UPI)-Bad weather hampered efforts today to send help to the primitive mountain tribal people of West Irian, rocked by the second major earthquake in four months.

Missionary workers, who are among the few outsiders in touch with tribes in the remote area, said at least 50 people died in the quake Friday. They said res-cuers feared the death toll might reach 100 when rubble is cleared from the settlements of Bime and Eipomek, the most severely damaged area in the mountains of West Irian, which forms the western part of the island of New Guinea.

The Eipomek hamlet suffered beavy damage June 25 in the first earthquake, in which 433 persons were killed and 3,000 missiog. The worst-hit area this time—in terms of loss of lives—was Bime. which had become a refugee center after the earlier quake. There was oo specific report on the casualty toll, however.

Thais Given U.S. Copters In Drive on Narcotics

BANGKOK, Thailand, Oct. 31 (AP)-The United States has given Thailand five helicopters for use in this country's campaign against oarcotics, a spokesman for the United States Embassy said today. The Bell belicopters, uoarmed civilian versions of the "Huey" craft used extensively in the Vietnam War, will probably be used to track down opium caravans and locate crops and heroin factories in the inaccessible area called the Golden Triangle, where the borders of Thailand, Laos and Burma coverage. That area is coosidered the source of about two-thirds of the world's opium. The embassy spokesman said the helicopters were now being assembled in Thailand for the Thai police. "Although Thailand, isn't the worst opium-producing country, we are a main trading ceoter for narcotics," said Prime Minister Tanin Kraivichien. "We are trying to tackle this problem with full force."

MAJOR CHEDIT / ARDS HONORED

Thai Publisher, Presses Stopped After Coup, Pleads for His Paper

BANGKOK, Thailand, Oct. 31-Three years ago Narog Katedad bought a oewspaper called Prachiathipathai—

The first night after the military seized power on Oct. 6, publication of all newspapers was banned and when Prachiathipathai applied for a license to resume publication, the response was silence. Others papers have started up

Since theo Mr. Naron has been try-ing unsuccessfully to coovince the rul-military junta that Democracy is all right, and publishing it will not under-mine the kingdom's foundations. Two weeks ago a rival paper that does oot bold with Mr. Naroog's political convic-tioo's published his oame on a list of people it said were "70 percent or more Communist."

Now Mr. Narong says he lives in hour-to-hour fear of a knock on the door, and soldiers outside to arrest him. He no longer talks about politics. He will, however, talk about his newspaper. It was founded in 1933. a year after the coup that ended the absolute monarchy in Thailand. When Mr. Narong bought it, it bad fallen on hard times. Circulation bad slipped to little more than 1,000 daily.

"We vowed to make this the most professional, bard-news newspaper in Thailand," Mr. Narong said two weeks ago in the dining room of his bome, surrounded by senior editors, the table littered with newspaper page proofs. "And we did. We built up the ataff, we hired good people. We published the truth."

Circulation Ranked Fourth The circulation rose 10 80,000, the fourth largest nationwide.

Mr. Narong beld up the paper's masthead, pointed to the Thai slogan beceath it and translated: "Of the people, by the people, for the people." He paused. "A famous American President of yours used those words once, didn't hear he asked." he?" he asked.

The paper has won nearly every major award in Thai journalism. It has also made many enemies. In 1974, Prachiathipathai exposed the use by senicr Thai military officers of helicopters to hunt protected animals in protected areas, and the exposure created an international scandal.

Two days before this month's coup, an investigative team published the story of two alleged student leftists hanged by indignant citizens north of Bangkok. Those hanged bad been, it developed, assassinated by police offi-cers in a private vendetta.

A Vast Mural Yet Unveiled

For that reason, he said, he has not yet exhibited the masterpiece of his life — an 18-font-long mural called "October 14." It depicts the atudent revolution of 1973 that led to the overthrow of the previous military government.

"If I had shown that during the past three years, I would bave become a hero of the studeots and the left," Mr. Pratuang said. "But then," he went on, "how would I have been able to say, "I am an artist allow me to portray." I am an artist; allow me to portray society as I see it, artistically, not politically?"

Now he plans to show it, in the next three months, publicly in a one-man exhibit in Bangkok and, he said, be will ask the oew military-backed Prime Minister to cut the ribbon open-ing the sbow. "If he does not do that," Mr. Pratuang said, "the artist will have oo place to stand."

Bangkok's usually bustling streets are deathly quiet by midnight, though arrests for violations of the curfew are still running at several bundred a night. Hit hardest are the noodle-stand vendors and other providers of food accus-tomed to catering to inexhaustible ap-petites until dawn.

IIRE JUS. THINKS BRITAIN MUST EXPAND ROLE Continued From Page 1 If ministers to have executive responsibility over government departments. Should the British appoint a Cabinet official as governor, one view says, he would serve as the arbiter of disagreements within the biracial government and play an important role in the drafting of a new Rhodesian constitution. Mr. Richard has vehemently rejected

Mr. Richard has vehemently rejected t significant British role in the interim covernment, and his associates say priately that it is "an absurdity to accept esponsibility without power."

The black Africans publicly, and the mericans privately, disagree. They say hat Britain, as the colonial power in Rholesia since the 1890's, bears responsibilty for the territory, despite Mr. Smith's ict of unilaterally declaring independence from Britain in 1965 rather than occept majority rule. Rhodesia's indesendence has never been officially recog-

The nationalists insist that only Britain an guarantee a transfer of power and hwart any prospect that Mr. Smith and is Rhodesia Front Party would undernine majority rule, a consistent fear mong the blacks.

The Choices Facing Britain

Mr. Kissinger, according to sources, has old aides that Britain faces the choice of enacting a significant role in the transilion or the far worse prospect of the collapse of the talks, the escalation of he guerrilla war and direct threats toward the white micority, outnumbered 22 to 1, many of whom carry dual British titizenship. Most white Rhodesians were porn in Australia, New Zealand or South Mrica.

This view is echoed by members of the nationalist delegations bere, which include legal experts, some of them from Britain. Josbua Nkomo, a nationalist leading one of the delegations, has a staff of seven legal advisers, mostly working on details of the transfer of power and constitutional issues.

One lawyer from Britain, who asked not to be identified, said today: "It's ab-surd to say Britain bas no power in Rhodesia. Her excuse is that she basn't got a single politician or soldier there. That's ber wish and desire. Sbe's got the legal power to send them there. She's sent troops there before. She'd probably do It again if the white minority were directly threatened." Another member of the Nkomo delegation, the former Prime Minister of Rhodesia, Garfield Todd, a white who espoused the nationalist cause and was beld under house detention for five years, said: "The first thing the nationalists want is for Britain to play a much more definite role than she appears to be taking.

"There is this authority to which we all look," he said. "You've got Kissinger, you've got the African froot-line presidents, you've got South Africa, you've got Britain. The whole thing is really

Wby Britain Is Reluctant Part of Britain's reluctance to engage itself in Rhodesia is based on fear of troop involvement and the specter of Britsoldiers' fighting black guerrillas. Other reasons are Britain's diminished role abroad, her lack of leverage and the yearning to decrease, rather than increase, involvement in an area simmering with racial tensions. According to sources, the United States has not expressed its views on British involvement to Mr. Richard or Prime Minister James Callaghan. Several diplomats believe that the "pace of events" will inevitably force the British Cabinet to accept a far more active role in Rhodesian affairs. Although Mr. Richard conferred for 90 minutes today with one of the nationalist leaders, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, the British conference chairman came under some criticism for the seemingly lefaurely ticipants bave been here nearly 10 days, and actual negotiations have pace of the conference, Many of the parand actual negotiations have not yet

Mr. Sithole said that the conference, which adjourned after a full session last Friday and is set to resume in the middle of the week, was moving "a little too slowly for my liking."

An aide to Bishop Abel Muzorewa, another nationalist leader, complained, "We did not come bere for a holiday." We came here to work. The British are going too slow."

Mr. Richard said that the issues of the conference were complex and preliminary meetings were necessary. "I think it is going as fast as can reasonably be expected," he said.

Nigeria bas begun a campaign to repatriate the professionals and executives living abroad. No one has any real idea North America and 20,000 in other African countries.

Campaign Isn't a Great Success

So far, the campaign, which has includ-ed sending out teams of traveling recruiters, has not been a great success. Its simple pitch is patriotism, that the emigres should come back because they are so badly needed. Il is doubtful that this can overcome the loss in comforts and amenities, the drop-off in living standards, and even the psychological wrench that coming back can mean.

"The shock is tremendous," sald one who has returned, a medical practitioner. You feel it as soon as you get off the plane. A PIECE OF FRANCE IS DYING IN CANADA

French-Speaking Community Being Eroded by Influence of the English Culture

Manitoba-Although formally incorporated into the larger city of Winnipeg five years ago, this middle-class community has struggled hard to preserve its separate identity as an out-post of French culture in the hostile lin-guistic environment of the wheat-growing

The erosion of the French presence visible in St. Boniface, once a thriving French-speaking city hut now a tiny enclave where the ancestral language is fast disappearing is a significant example of the growing confrontation between the rival linguistic groups across Canada.

Animosity hetween French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians has been described by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, among other leaders, as a threat to the continued existence of the Canadian Confederation because of the denths of separatist feeling in French-speaking

Although the rivalry may seem far re-moved from pastoral Manitoha, where only 6.1 percent of the population of a million are French speakers—more people speak Ukrainian and German than French in Winnipeg, the capital—historical fac-tors have boned the conflict in St. Boni-

French Once Powerful There

Manitoba, though far from Quehec and long an English stronghold, is a place where the French were once powerful and where the French were once powerful and about equal in number with the British settlers. Fort Garry, near here, was the seat of the short-lived rebel government of Louis Riel, the part-French, part-Indiao head of an uprising in the 19th century hy Indians and people of mixed French and Indian stock. Visitors to Winnipeg are shown a statue of the rebel leader, who was hanged in 1885 but later hecame a folk hero.

The legislation that brought Manitoba into the Canadian Confederation in 1870 made French an official language equal made French an official language equal with English and guaranteed that the French could have their own schools. However, subsequent laws wiped out those rights after an influx of settlers left the French hadly outnumbered.

Intermarriage with "les Anglais" and education in English further tilted the imbalance against the French, said Jean-Jacques Le Françols, editor of the weekly.

Jacques Le François, editor of the weekly French-language newspaper, La Liberté.

"In 1971 there were 86,000 Francophones in Manitoba, but by 1976 there were only 40,000 people in the province who speak French every day," he commented in an interview, quotiog Govern-

Schools Termed a Failure

Mr. Le François said hilingual schools, intended to make students proficient in both English and French, usually turned out graduates who spoke oelther lan-guage well. Attempts by parents to per-suade children to divide their television time between the local French and English channels and to listen to the Frenchlanguage radio station in Winnipeg are also said to be less than successful.

Pressure from pareots recently won the reopeoing of a French-language school closed two years ago. Mr. Le François said, however, that the parents' victory in the struggle to prevent French from "there's nothing like a fight to keep the spirits up." This was an allusion to the apathy that is said to affect many French Canadians in the overpowering English

Signs on the street corners of St. Boniface say "rue" instead of "street," but conversations overheard in a long stroll along those streets was in English if the speakers were young.

Grants and Donations Help

The fight to save French in St. Boniface is carried on mainly from the fortress-like building of the French Cultural Center. The many-sided enterprise is supported by Government grants and donations raised by the proviocial French Canadian activist organization, Société Franco-

Nevertheless, said Mr. Le François, who was a federal information officer working in French before he took over La Libert few years ago, the lure of Ouebec has been strong for ambitious young French Canadians of Manitoha who wish to work in their mother tongue.

A CARTER ADVISER URGES HELP NOW FOR ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)-Jimmy Carter's top economics adviser said today that would now recommend immediate help for the economy, such as a tax cut, because it is "seriously deteriorating week by week.'

Lawrence R. Klein said that whoever is elected President on Tuesday must act quickly to give tax cuts, tax rebates or to increase Federal spending. "We're losing time. The situation has developed to the point where the Government needs to act now," he said.

But Alan Greenspan, chairman of Presi dent Ford's Council of Economic Advisers, said that he thought that such a stimulus for the economy would be "unwise" because it would make inflation worse in the long run. "The pause is over and the economy is in the process of accelerating both in the current quarter and in 1977," he said.

Mr. Klein said he has only recently begun advising Mr. Carter to support economic stimulus because until the past few weeks he didn't think it was needed. Mr. Greenspan and Mr. Klein appeared on the CBS television program "Face the included at least one car with a pre-election sign on top that read: "David Petroois for Councilman."

The accused man, Kenyon W. Pruyn, 32 years old, had been in trouble as a youngster-staging real gun battles io the nearby woods with a 22-caliber rifle and since he had got out of the Marines a few years ago, he was known as a problem drinker, according to some of the oeigbbors.

But no ooe could say what had touched off last night's carnage.

North Maio Street curves and dips close to the Hudson as it runs between Joyce's and the Kennedy apartments. Some of those who had gone to 7 P.M. mass at $t. Paul's, whose spire rises on the knoll to the north, bad gone into Joyce's for supper. Saturday night shoppers were out and, prohably, a few Halloween prank-

After Mrs. Ryan telephooed police headquarters, her daughter Pat Hatalsky telaphoned ber mother and Mrs. Ryan told ber there was gunfire from the apartment houses toward Joyce's across the street. "Don't get excited, Mom," Mrs. Hatalaky said, "it's Halloween."

Arms Cache Found

But the hullets were real, and there were many of them. Mr. Pruyn had in his aparament, the police said, nine rifles —inclinding at least one Army M-1 and three shotguns and at least 300 rounds of ammunition. The policemen and troop-of ammunition. The policemen and troopers who converged as the alarm spread fired hundreds of rounds in response to gunfire from the building.

Patrolman Mike Zurlo, on the desk at police headquarters a half block south of the apartments, took Mrs. Ryao's call just as the holdup alarm to the left of his desk buzzed. It had been set off by George Bowns, the bartender at the restaurant, as he dropped to the floor at the first spatter of gunshoes. Patrolman the first spatter of gunshoes. Patrolman Zurlo sent two squads of cars, and other members of the force, who keep mooitor by radio sets on in their homes, con-

A patron ioside the dark old-fashioned bar, James Marsh, was hit by a hullet that tore through the wall. He crawled toward the cigarette machine at the rear for cover and was hit again. Mr. Marsh died later at Memorial Hospital in Alhany. Other patrons flocked to the rear of the rambling huilding or flung themselves oo the floor under tables.

Patrolman Joho Gonnelly, 36 year old, drove his car into the muddy parking lot on the south side of Joyce's. He pulled around facing the street—and the Kennedy apartmeots. As he stopped, a hlast of shotgun pellets from a third-floor wio-dow struck him in the face. He is io Albany County Medical Center.

Patroiman Is Slain

Patrolman Paul Luther, 21 years old, a part-time member of the Mechanicville force who had taken his Civil Service exam for a permanent job earlier in the day, pulled his car up to the front door. Earlier, he had given a speeding ticket to Mr. Pruyn. As Patrolman Luther stepped toward the door of the bar, a bullet hit him in the back of the neck. He fell to the sidewalk, where be lay until a patrolman, Joseph Pickett, braving the fire, dragged him Inside. But Patrolman Luther was dead.

Even before the police cooverged, neighbors in the three-story garden apartment building, hearing sbots and reallzing their origin, had started to huddle behind any shelter they could find. Mary Kupiec, who lives in the next door apart-ment on the third floor, crawled inside her bathtub. Her husband, Robert, crouched next to it. Karen McGuire, who is due to give hirth in two weeks, had been watching "Starsky and Hutch" wheo she heard the shots. She hid behind the couch in her second-floor apartment.

Io a first-floor apartment, there had been an all-afternoon birthday party for 2-year-old Tanya Tripp. The child's grandfather, Police Sgt. Don Tripp, heard about the shooting on his monitor at home, hurried there and went io the back

Then he and Patrolman Nick DiVirgilio went together to the third floor. "I shot through the partition six times," the Sergeant said, "hut I didn't hit him." They retreated downstairs.

Then You Shoot

Police Chief Joseph Ryan ran from headquarters and squeezed into the doorway at Baker's electric supply house next to a brick pillar. That is on the east side of the street between headquarters and the apartments. "I had a man behind a car out in the street," the chief said. "And I said to him, You wait until be shoots at me. Then you shoot."

The chief stepped out quickly and fired two shots at the apartment window. As he ducked back into the doorway a bullet whizzed by and knocked off his specta-cles. His man on the street fired. A state trooper on the roof of Pender's clothing store, a three-story building about 150 yards or so to the south across North Main Street also fired. But none of the hundreds of bullets that ripped into the building hit the sniper.

Patrolman John Wallace had gooe Mechanicville High School with Mr. pruyn. The patrolman was in the Joyce's parking lot, crouched behind a parked car, during the gunfire. "I knew who it was over there," he said, "because I knew his voice. He was hollering, 'Come and Sergeant Tripp was out in the back of the apartments now. No one knows exactly how, but a fire had started in the gunman's apartment. Smoke was pouring through it. The sergeant heard Mr. Pruyn shout: "If I come out will you

"No." shouted Sergeant Tripp. "Come out with your hands up. This is Don Tripp. You know me." Wild Look in Eyes'

Moments later, his hands held bigh, a trickle of blood apparently from a cut inflicted by flying glass smearing his left forehead, the gunnan emerged out a back entrance, toward the Hudson. He was wearing slacks and a checkered shirt and according to a reporter Pete Fischetti of The Troy Times-Recor who had run up with policemen "he bad a wild look in

Accused Sniper A 'Black Sheep,' Neighbors Say By ROBERT E. TOMASSON

MECHANICVILLE, N.Y., Oct. 31-5 Residents of this working-class, residential town portraved Kenyon W. Pruyn today as the black sheep of one most prosperous families. He was in two persons and injured 10 others with custody on charges of having killed gunfire from his apartment last night.

Billy, as he was known to all, "was, always in trouble," said a woman io a red-quilted coat as she stood through out the day with scores of others in front of Joyce's Log Cabin Restaurant, which had been the smiper's target for

The elderly residents knew Mr. Pruyn's father and grandfather. The younger people grew up with him and his wife in this town where third-generation and fourth-generation families, are common.

"Billy will be 33 Election Day," said John Wallace, who grew up with the 6-foot 1-inch, 180-pound suspect.

60 Shots Fired by Policeman

"It was just, "Hi Billy, hi John" said the officer. "I really didn't know him. "But I heard him shouting at us," the patrolman said, "and I knew it was

Billy Pruyn was born and reared in a large gray atucco house about six blocks down Main Street from where the gun battle took place.

At an early age, said residents, he began collecting guns. While the area is a prime deer hunting area, Mr. Pruyn preferred to play war games well into his teens in the woods that surround

Mr. Pruyn went to high school here with his two sisters, Sue and Kathy. When Mr. Pruyn was taken into custody, one of the arresting officers, was Thomas Salvadore, whose brother is married to Cathy Pruyn.

In high school Mr. Pruyn met Rose mary Burgoyne, described as a "tall, quiet girl," the daughter of a policeman

Several years after they graduated, they were married and moved into the modest apartment on Main Street.

Mr. Pruyn's father, Kenneth, and his father before him, owned the large Pruyn humberyard in the northwest

About five years ago, Kenneth Pruynhad a heart attack while driving back alone from the family's summer cottage and was killed in a crash.

Prior to his death. Mr. Pruyn bad sold the lumber business. Under the new owner, the yard quickly went bankrupt and today is a vast, vacant Soon after the death of his father Billy Pruyn's mother died.

Residents along Main Street were family, but declined, as If by tacit agreement, to give their names.

"Billy was a drinker when he was a teen-ager," said a woman whose Pruyn lumberyard. Police Chief Joseph Ryan declined to say whether Mr. Pruyn had an arrest.

Philip Connolly, a former bartender at Joyce's restaurant, was in the bar at the time of the shooting last night. Today, he described Mr. Pruyn as "a really strange, weird character."

"He was a pretty beavy drinker, and I had to cut him off several times,"

Mr. Connally said. "He wouldn't say boo, then he would just get up and leave."

Marine Record Unknown Just before his marriage, Mr. Pruyn enlisted in the Marine Corps. Details of his service were not known. At the Clover Leaf Tavern three blocks from the scene of the shooting; a dozen male patrons watching the Dallas Cowboys-Washington Redskins foothall game seemed reluctant to dis-cuss Mr. Pruyn. Rather, they talked of the dead and the injured.

Last night, before the shooting, Mrs. Pruyo took the couple's two daughters; about 4 and 6 years old, to her parents; home on Grove Street so that she could attend a hingo game in a local church.
Today, the hlinds were closed on the home on the quiet street of clapboard two-family homes and a young woman who answered the door said the family had nothing to say.

JOHN BROWN'S GRAVE AND OLYMPICS CLASH

Proposed Ski Jump at Lake Placid Said to Have 'Adverse Visual Impact' on Historic Site

By HAROLD FABER

LAKE PLACID, N.Y.-John Brown's body, which has been a-mouldering in the grave here since 1859, has become a most unlikely obstacle to the construc-tion of a new ski jump for the 1980 Winter Olympics.

A proposed tower for the 90-meter ski jomp would have an "adverse visual impact" on the rural character of John where he is buried, accord-Browo's farm, where he is buried, according to an environmental-impact statement prepared for the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee.

The tip of th proposed 90-meter skijump tower would be visible from Brown's grave, according to sketches submitted with the impact study. The tower would rise 266 feet above the hill at the Intervale area.

Although no one here seriously believes that the Olympics would be canceled or even delayed because of the ski jump's site, a series of hearings starting Nov. I will explore the eovironmaotal impact of the 1990 games.

Grave a Surprise to Some

Perhaps the most surprising discovery to nonresidents is the fact that John Brown is ouried in the town of North Elba, about two miles from the center of the village of Lake Placid, far from the scenes of his antislavery exploits in Kansas and at Harper's Ferry, W. Va.

The flery abolitionist, who was born in Torriogtoo, Cono., and who became a tanner, sheep-raiser and wool trader before embarking on his antislavery cru-sade, moved to North Elba in 1849 and bought a 244-acre farm. His purpose, according to historical documents, was to belp another abolitionist, Gerrit Smith, set up a farm in the Adirondack wilderness for Negroes moving to the North In 1855, Brown's soc-in-law, married to one of the 20 Brown children, built farmhouse for Brown's use. After Brown was sentenced to death for his raid on the Federal Arsenal at Harper's Ferry, his final wish was to be buried on the farm. His wife and friends accom-panied the body back to North Elba, where he was buried on Dec. 8, 1859. Today his grave, the farmhouse, a barn, a statue and caretaker's buildings are part of a historic site operated by the State Office of Parks and Recreation and open to the public all year round.

Wednesdays through Sundays, It is situlated off Route 73, east of Lake Placid and southwest of the area's existing skill jump facilities at Intervale.

Economic Benefit Foreseen

The impact study, prepared by Sasaki Associates, predicted a positive economic benefit to the community, along with temporary congestion and inconvenience during the two-week period of the games. In addition, it foresaw an increase in seasonal population, an increase in long-term employment and some fiscal beoefits to or local communities.

The only negative aspects of the conise struction, according to the report, would at be in the area of John Brown's grave. The visual impact of the view to the proposed 90-meter ski jump, from the near viewiog frame of John Brown's farm and from Roule 73 at the foot of the jump, is a significant impact," the report said.

adverse visual effects could mitigated by proper design, the report said, adding that the esthetic issue would have to be weighed with economic factors and the importance of the Olympic Games , in the final decision.

In a dissent, Ron McKenzie, chairman of the Olympic Organizing Committee, said he thought the ski tower would enbance the popularity of the farm and gravesite rather than detract from both.

"This will bring more people into the area and increase the number of visitors to this fine historical monument to the abolitionists," he said.
Two bearings will be held to consider the environmental-impact statement, one by the Adirondack Park Agency and the other by the Economic Development Ad-ministration of the United States Department of Commerce, which holds the purse strings to the $49 million appro-priated by Congress for the games. The agency will hold its first hearing on Nov. 1 at Lake Placid to establish rules for consideration of an application for "conceptual" approval of the ski-jump facilities. The agency has jurisdiction over proposed structures more than 40 feet high in the Adirondack Park. The Federal hody will hold hearings on Nov. 11 in Lake Placid and on Nov. 18 in New York City before releasing funds for construction.

Citizens Picket Prostitutes While Officials Use Zoning Laws to Close Parlors and Theaters

By REGINALD STUART

DETROIT, Oct. 31-Citizens of this city have recently started a concerted campaign to break the commercial sex industry here and chase it out of town.

Prostitutes have been scared off the streets in some parts of town by groups of neighborbood residents picketing during heavy business hours. Customers of prostitutes, commonly referred to as johns have found that when they are arrested or convicted on a soliciting charge, their names and addresses are listed in the regular prostitute report published in The Detroit News, the city's big afternoon

City and county attorneys, with the help of the police bere, have padlocked massage parlora and are trying to close more theaters and bookstores through the enforcement of tough zoning laws, upbeld by the United States Supreme

"We don't think any society can erase these things, but our concern is when it's done openly, blatantly as it is now In Detroit, that It burts the community." Maureen P. Reilly, supervising assistant corporation counsel for the city of De-

Wrote Zoning Ordinance

The 42-year-old lawyer, who haodles the city's legal attack on commercial sex, wrote the tough zoning ordinaoce for the city that was recently upbeld by Supreme Court. She also argued the case before

The zoning laws, written in 1972, were amendments to existing zoning ordinances. They lumped commercial sex city statutes with other leisure spots in the city and required them to be situated at least 1,000 feet apart. A complementary zoning provision also required the new husinesses to obtain the consent of 51 percent of the people living or operating businesses within 500 feet of the proposed business before opening. To date two "go-go" bars have done this.

The city and the county prosecutor are using existing padlock laws to attack businesses open before the 1972 statute.

Detroit, like most cities, has always bad its share of prostitutes. But in 1969 the sex business expanded, and two adult bookstores, two sex film theaters end a few 'go-go" bars opened. That same year, the Supreme Court gave limited protection to so-called obscene literature and films. And by 1972 Detrolt had 21 bookstores and 18 theaters and more massage

It also had approximatel 70 "go-go" bars. These businesses were usually clustered and were very close to if not in residential areas. Today there is a strip of them along Eight Mile Road in the northwest part of town, they are scattered along Woodward Avenue, the main street from the beart of downtown into the suburbs, and they are in the so-called Cass Corridor, an inner city neighborhood of mainly poor whites and blacks, and along portions of West Grand Boulevard.

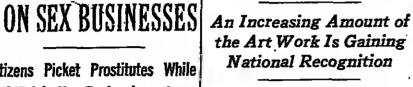

When the weather warmed up for the summer here, prostitutes also began to operate again in the areas near these

Motivation Behind Picketing

Some citizen groups were motivated to picket prostitutes after a number of women, most of them black, who were not prostitutes were approached by men, mostly from the suburbs, who thought the women were prostitutes because of the neighborhoods in which they were

Police arrest records show that a sizable number of the men arrested are from suhurban, mostly white neighborhoods. Statistically, the city appears to be winning its battle against the commercial sex industry. Since 1972 only two theaters and six bookstores have opened and three of the latter have since closed. Twelve massage parlors bave been closed and the last one that is well known, Relaxation Plus, on Eight Mile, will be in court this week in an effort to block the city's effort to padlock it. Three bookstores and two theaters are in court now and many prostitutes have disappeared from their regular haunts.

"At this point I can see a turning point," said Sgt. Frank Heaney, head of the padlock and pandering section of the Detroit Police Department. "Citizens, homeowner associations and the N.A.A.C.P. have played a great part and I think we can see a little light at the end of the tunnel."

VALLE CRUCIS, N.C., Oct. 31—Half a century ago, H.L. Mencken surveyed the arts scene in tha South and concluded bitingly that Dixie was the "Sahara of the Bozart."

"One would find it difficult," the Baltimore polemicist wrote, "to unearth a single second-rate city between Ohio and the Pacific that isn't struggling to establish an orchestra, or setting up a little theater, or going in for an art gallery, or making some effort to get in touch with civilization. You will find no such effort in the South." Mencken would have to rewrite that oft-quoted essay were be to return to the South of the 1970's. Dixie is still no cultural oasis, hut as they say in Southern arts circles these days, some flowers are beginning to bloom in the Arts activity in the South has Increased markedly in recent years as the region has become more and more an economic and political power. Increased wealth and urbanization have left a broad scattering of symphony orchestras, civic ballets, little theaters, art galleries and museums, art schools, cultural centers and cultural councils.

Worthy of National Note Much of the activity is, at best, semiprofessional. But more and more of it is professional and worthy of national

Here in the remote mountains of western North Carolina, for instance, curators from two major American art museums—the Corcoran in Washington and the Whitney io New York-showed up this weekend for a seminar with some of the South's leading contempo-rary artists and sculptors.

The seminar was officially titled the "Southern Rim Conference," a title meant to say something about the level of arts activity in the South today. The Southern Rim, or Sun Belt, is the arc of Southern and Southwestern states power faster than any other region in

"Cultural power, too," said William Dunlap, a professor of art at nearby Appalachian State University, one of the seminar's sponsors.

Whitney Representative

Jane Livingston, the Corcoran representative at the seminar, said of the region, particularly the South: "There is a tremendous amount of art energy down bere now, just tremendous, There is quality. There is style. The rest of the country needs to hear what is being said at this seminar, needs to know about Southern art today."

Marcia Tucker, the representative from the Whitney, agreed, but doubted that the rest of the country was listening, particularly New York. She said she would leave the Whitney at the end of the year because "the manage-ment is too parochial, too much into the New York thing."

James Surls, a Texan who sculptures massive wooden works with axes and chaio saws, contended that New York was no longer "the be all and end all." "The South supports me now, buys my stuff, encourages me," he said. "It's as interesting to stay at home as it is to go to New York. Things are beginning to happen down here." No "rim" city is doing more to support the arts than Houston, according to Paul Schimmel, the curator of the Contemporary Arts Museum there.

Oil Money Played a Part

"A lot of Southern towns have money ow," he said, "but Houston has the most because of the oil crisis. More and more patrons are emerging, and that's drawing in more and more

"The farther Southern artists get from the old paint-the-dilapidated-on a somewhat smaller metropolitan scale, Anniston, Ala., now has an annual Shakespeare festival that runs a mooth and is professional enough to draw theatergoers from Atlanta, a three-hour drive to the east.

In a South that is becoming increasingly urbanized and sophisticated, how Southern are today's Southern artists? So far as painting and sculpture go, the conference here this weekend provided no real answers.

A lot of Dixie beer was downed, and there was a lot of talk about good old boys, kudzu, the Klan, chickens, war, blacks and guilt. But no artist would admlt to deliberate injection of the South into a painting or sculptured detected a strong narrative tendency in the works of the artists represented. You can find narrative in a lot of American painting today," she said.

"But it's particularly strong in Southerners. They just love to tell tales." But what about a distinctive Southern theme?

"I'm from the South and sometimes what I draw is about the South," John Alexander, an Alabamian now living in Houston, said, "But I don't just paint about the South, Is it Southern to put hair on a North Carolina church the

The facts are in. Right through the latest reporting period, August 1976, TWA has beaten American and United's on-time performance for the past 15 months between New York and Chicago.

These statistics are shown in CAB records for flights actually flown, and are based on percent of arrivals within 15 minutes of schedule.

At TWA, we've worked hard for our on-time record—and we intend to keep it. But don't take our word for it; take TWA to Chicago and see.

TWA has carry-on luggage compartments on every flight.

No matter which flight you take, you can take your luggage right on board with you because TWA has convenient carry-on luggage compartments on every plane we fly to Chicago.

So next time you take a business trip to Chicago, call your Travel Agent or Corporate Travel Department and put yourself on TWA. It's the best business flyer's airline in the business.

Being the best isn't everything. It's the only thing."

Academic Foundation Chief

Aaron Bernard Wildaysky

By PRANAY GUPTE

His new job is bringing Aaron Wildavsky back home to New York City again. "I've lived away for almost 20 years, and that's heen too long," he said yesterday. "It's time for me to come home." The 46-year-old Dr. Wil-davsky, who is currently dean of the Graduate School of Public Policy at the Uoi-versity of California at Berkeley, expects, however, to be away from New York for just a hit longer. That is because he is not scheduled to start on his new job as president of the Russell Sage Foundation until Sept. I next year.

"It's going to be a challenge," Aaron Bernard Wildavsky—who does not use his middle name—said in a telephone interview from his home in Berkeley. "It will mean an opportunity to do more. I have more or less already done what I wanted to do out here.

Started Graduate School

"Out here" was where, seven years ago, he started the Graduate School of Public Policy. The institution's objec-tive, Dr Wildavsky explained yester-day, was to train policy analysis, and he noted that his students had ob-tained responsible positions not only in academe but also in the Federal Government and state governments.

Dr. Wildavsky's association with Berkeley dates to 1963, when he joined the university's faculty. He served for three years as chairmao of the political science department. Prior to his arrival at Berkeley, he was a member of the faculty at Oberlin College, and he had also been a visiting professor at Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Dr. Wildavsky held these academic positions at the same time that he pursued a separate, but complementary, career as an author. He has written more than a dozen books and edited several more. He has contributed to scores of magazines and scholarly jeurnate.

"I consider myself primarily a politi-cal scientist and public-policy analyst," Dr. Wildavsky said, "But I have chosen to concentrate on budgeting, on the Presidency and oo the process of analy-sis itself."

Studied at Brooklyn College

His interest in political science and public policy started at Brooklyn Col-lege, his alma mater. It was maintained through his tenure at the University of Sydney, Australia, which he attended on a Fulbright grant. And it was sus-tained at Yale University, from which he received master and doctoral

The manner in which Dr. Wildavsky has pursued his interest has drawn recognition from a oumber of professional and other organizations. The American Political Science Association, for instance, gave him the 1975 Charles A. Merriam Award, and both the Na-tional Academy of Public Administra-lion and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences have made him a fellow.

And there have been other affilia-tions: Dr. Wildavsky is oow a member of the Mayor's Financial Advisory Com-mittee in San Francisco; he serves oo the board of directors of Management Assistance Inc.; he is on the executive committee of the National Research

How does he find the time for all this?

An Early Riser

"The answer is simple," he said with a chuckle. "I get up very early-and I like doing what I do."

There are other things that Dr. Wildavsky likes to do.

He is an avid hiker, and he swims several laps in a pool every day. He says he "consumes" the works of John Gardner and Seul Bellow, and when he is finished, he consumes them all over again.

And he plays the recorder. His musical interests, Dr. Wildavsky said, are a family trait. His wife, the former Mary Cadman of London, plays the piano, and their four children—from 10 to 16 years old—perform on other instruments, such as the trombone and

"We are all now looking forward to New York," Dr. Wildavsky said.

What will his new job involve? "I will be developing new programs, particularly some in which we will be working with the city on public policy matters, he said. The Sage Foundation, which was established in 1907, is one of the country's oldest general-purpose foundations, and it has devoted its research and programs to solued its research and programs to solu-tions to societal and governmental needs.

Dr. Wildavsky will be the ninth president of the foundation. He will succeed Dr. Hugh F. Cline, who recently resigned.

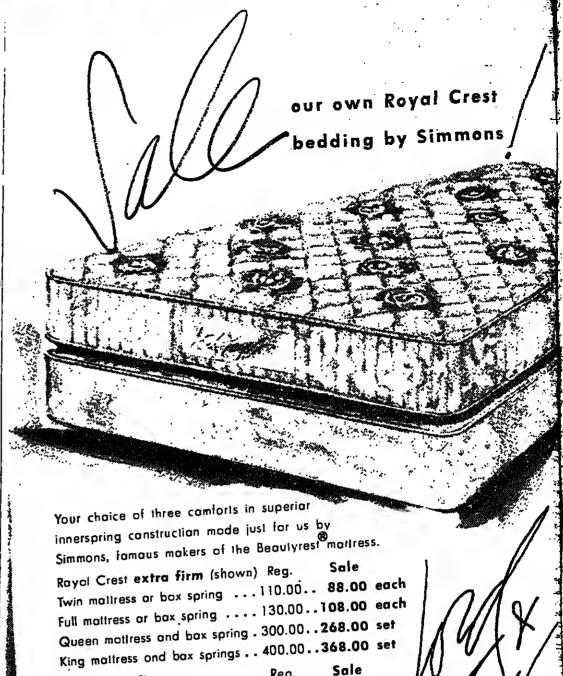

"The hoard is exceptionally pleased to bring to the foundation, and to New York, an outstanding political scientist," Oscar M. Ruebhausen, the Sage Foundation's board chairman, said yesterday.

Cleric Asked to Suspend Himself Pending Hearing on Nazi Charge

tional Council of Churches, meeting in special sessioo in Chicago Saturday, suggested that Archbishop Valerian D. Trifa be asked to suspend himself as a member of the council's governing board peoding disposition of charges that be was a Nazi war criminal.

A statement issued after the session that the committee was asking "the Orthodox Church in America to refer to the Episcopal commission appointed to study the case of Archbishop Trifa the proposal that it consider requesting the Archbishop to refrain from executing his duties as a member of the governing board until the matter has been resolved by the Holy Synod [of the Orthodox Church] and the civil judicial process."

The executive committee noted that it was powerless under the council's constitution to proceed against a board member delegated by one of its constituent bodies and recommended that William T. Thompson, president of the council, appoint a committee to consider "possible changes in the rules" in that respect.

The committee's statement also referred to civil and ecclesiastical proceedings against the Archbishop for alleged war crimes in Rumania in 1941 and more recent anti-Semitic statements.

"In the present situation." it said.

Rabbi Avraham Weiss of the Hebrew institute of Riverdale, a teader of Concerned Jewish Youth, said after the Chicago meeting that the couocil's decision was "totally" unsatisfactory.

Archbishop Valerian D. Trifa

"The Trifa issue transcends the [coun il's] constitution and any internal organ

zational process," he said. The rabbi reiterated the demand of the Concerned Jewish Youth that Archbishop rifa be suspended promptly from the council's governing board, which, he said, would never allow a member of the Ku Kiux Klan to sit at its table."

RIBE IN TACOMA, WASH., LEAVES JUVENILE CENTER

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 30 (AP) -group of Puyallup Indians ended a week-long occupation of a juvenile detention center Saturday after reaching an agree-ment with the state to resolve the ownership of the center.

Under the agreement, the state wil hand over six acres to the tribe, regard-less of the ultimate decision on ownership of the entire 20-acre complex, Gov.

Dan Evans said.
"We don't have the title yet, but our elders are really proud of us because we can stand up." said Ramona Bennett, a tribal spokesman. "We doo't have to hang our heads any more."

Federal, state and Indian officials reached agreement in principle on the plan late Friday. The Indians left the Cascadia Juvenile Detention Center today, meeting the deadline set in a Federal court eviction ootice. More than 100 Indians participated in the occupation. The Indians took over the center last aturday after holding an open house on the fifth floor of the building. That night, the only persons reported armed were official tribal policemen, who participated the takeover.

Books of The Times

Reclaiming the Ashes

BY CHRISTOPHER LEHMANN-HAUPT

Living in America. By Dorothy Rabinowitz, 242 pages, Knopf. $8.95, Naturally it is painful in the extreme to have to contemplate once again the horrors of the holocaust and the six million. Even when fresh details evoke fresh tears, one is only reminded of the impotence of weeping. Still, in 'New Lives: Survivors of the Holocaust Living in America," it is absolutely oecessary for Dorothy Rabinowitz to offer up new or forgotten snapshots of the horror — liberated inmates of Belsen screaming in fear when British doctors tried to approach them with needles and solutions for intravenous feedings; Gen. George S. Patton Jr. moving away from an inspection party to vomit at the sights in a labor camp at Ohrdruf,

For the need to remember is the overriding theme of "New Lives"—remembering for the sake of bearing witness, or maintaining vigilance, or fueling anger, or simply keeping one's perspective. And in order to dramatize how her survivors have dealt with their memories, it is essential that the author briog them to life for her readers as well.

Dramatization is the key for Miss Rabinowitz, who is a native New Yorker, a freelance journalist and book reviewer and the co-author of "Home Life," a book about old people in in-stitutions. She gives us no statistics in "New Lives"—no dispersal percentages, no demography. Instead she tells the stories of representative individuals-Jacob Korman (a pseudonym) and Stella, two witnesses at the deportation hearings of Hermine Braunsteine Ryan, the former vice kommandant of the Maidanek and Ravensbrück conceotration camps who turned up after the war as a Queens housewife; Abe Flakier, Leon Jolson and Emil Wolf, all of whom have managed, with wildly divergiog degrees of material and opiritual success to rebuild their lives in the new world that America has of-fered.

Audacious Refugee

These stories are recounted with enough particularity and suspense to engage us in their human drama com-pletely. For instance, early in "New Lives" we are introduced to Leon Jolson just as he has arrived in New York City in 1947 and is about to apply to the recouping of his fortunes the prin-ciples of audacity-that led to his survival in Europe. (Once, when Jolson was hiding in a train full of gentile Polish prisoners, the SS, suspecting there was a Jew oo board, commeoced a search for the one man who would be circumcised. Instead of trying to hide, Joison rushed forward with his hands on the buttons of his trousers when the SS officers arrived in his car, and was at once waved aside as too eager to be worth the trouble of checking.)
Yet for all the expectancy that Joison's adventures in America arouse, it is not until the end of the book that we learn the results of his audaciousness. In between we hear a dozen other interesting stories. At the same time, Miss Rabinowitz writes in a highly reflective, almost irooic, style. (Jolsoo "saw himself ... as the man he had been and could yet be again, a man empowered by the experience of survival to be even more than he had been; for it was in the nature of the holocaust that it bred extremity, and those who survived ithad absorbed extremity in their bones.") The effect of this style is to alienate us from its content (in the Brechtian sense) and thus to universalize the particular. So what we end up with is not so much a gallery of case studies as a series of illustrations. And these illustrations cover the major pre-occupations of holocaust survivors in

Indeed, by the time Miss Rabinowitz has finished she has touched on all the major issues that have stirred survivors over the last three decades-from the debate over wbether it was right to purchase products manufactured in postwar Germany, to the insult to their honor felt by survivors at the accusation leveled by certain theorists that European Jewry failed to resist the Nazi onslaught. Yet to repeat: Miss Rabinowitz's illustrations always remain living people.

Gruesome Memento

Perhans the best illustration of this s Stella, a survivor of Maidanek and Skarzysko who now lives in Kew Gardens, Queens. An impulsive person who refuses to analyze her motives (it was an impulse that led to her escape from Skarzysko). Stella decided suddenly in 1974 not only to return for a visit to her native Poland, but also to go and see what remained of Maidanek. Once there, she soon found herself standing before one of the cre-matoria, which to this day remains filled with human ashes to remind posterity of what happened there.

Suddenly, asking her companion to hold on to her legs, Stella crossed the small space behind the spectator's railing and crawled into the oveo door to fill an envelope with the ashes. For a terrifying moments she found herself stuck in the door, but with the help of her friend she finally wriggled free with her memento mori. When asked by shocked friends back home io Kew Gardens why she had done such a thing, she shrugged and said she didn't know. . .

But we know. Even a bad novelist would not have dared to write such a sceoe, but in "New Lives" it is entirely plaosible, and Dorothy Rabinowitz makes us understand. One has to re-Unless one hears the holocaust in mind, the 20th century is meaningless.

The Nuclear Issues

Of all the issues the next President will face, none are more critical than those in the nuclear field, civilian and military, for they can mean life or death for the nation-and for all civilization. The policies Jimmy Carter and President Ford promise in this area diverge sharply at a number of points.

On halting the nuclear arms race with the Soviet Union, while assuring an adequate defense, both candidates have committed themselves to "essential equivalents" with the U.S.S.R. and rapid conclusion of the SALT II negotiations, which have been 90 percent completed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on the basis of the Ford-Brezhnev Vladivostok agreement.

It is on the longer-range perspective in atrategic arms -which might be touched on in the SALT II treaty, but is more likely to be addressed seriously in SALT III. that Jimmy Carter has differed aharply with the Administration on a fundamental issue and has made a major

The Administration programs to develop higger, highly accurate intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) often are minimized as "bargaining chips" for the SALT talks. But, as experience shows, they are less likely to be bargained away than to become inbedded in the force structures of both sidea. We support Mr. Carter's proposal to seek agreement with the Soviet Uoion oo "a quick freeze" on qualitative improvements in strategic weapons and on such quantitative elements as numbers of atomic missiles and warheads and total throw-weight.

A freeze or, at least, a slowdown in quantitative and qualitative improvements in strategic weapons is the essential first step toward significant reductions in the high limit put on the arms race in the Vladivostok agreement. If the huge and expensive buildup on both sides permitted under the Vladivostok ceilings is complete, it will be infinitely more difficult to negotiate reductions.

The dangers of "vertical" proliferation of nuclear weapons in the mounting Soviet-American forces is exceeded only by the risks of "horizontal" proliferation, now that 28 or more countries have or are building nuclear power reactors, which also can produce the explosive for atomic bombs. Plutonium, a man-made element that builds up in spent reactor fuel rods, may one day be re-used as commercial nuclear fuel. But, for the moment, its only real use is for bombs that can be mede so easily that almost any government, guerrilla force, terrorist group and even the Mafia could do so. once the far more difficult step of separating the plutonium from highly radioactive reactor wastes has been accomplished in a nuclear reprocessing plant.

Mr. Carter has put forward a comprehensive plan to get the proliferation problem under control and avoid a premature "plutonium economy" that would put third world countries alone in poasession of enough nuclear explosives annually to make 3,000 bombs a year in the 1980's.

President Ford's most critical anti-proliferation decisions are to seek a wordwide, three-year moratorium on the export of plutonium reprocessing technology and-far more important-to defer commercial plutonium reproc-

The Administration's new anti-proliferation strategy states that the avoidance of proliferation henceforth "must take precedence over economic and energy benefits." It tells the world that "reprocessing should not proceed unless there is sound reason to conclude that the world community can effectively overcome the associated risks of proliferation"-something many ex-

There are two other important Carter proposalsignored by Mr. Ford-that we support. One is to seek a five-year Soviet-American moratorium on all nuclear explosions, including so-called peaceful devices, pending negotiation of a worldwide comprehensive test ban treaty. The other proposal is to increase non-nuclear priorities for American energy research and development funds, two-thirds of which now are committed to nuclear power, with emphasis on speeding a commercial breeder reactor by the 1990's that would use plutonium as a fuel and cover the globe with plutonium stockpiles. Mr. Ford proposes to leave the swollen breeder budget intact.

Finally, we favor Mr. Carter's pledge to make more vigorous and effective summit-level approaches to the leaders of West Germany and France to defer their sales to Brazil and Pakistan of small, uneconomic plutooium reprocessing plants, the first ever sold by any supplier nation, which can have only one purpose: to make bombs.

All in all, as welcome as is President Ford's Johnnycome-lately nuclear policy, the foresight and grasp of nuclear problems shown by Mr. Carter qualify him far more, in our view, to exercise the critical nuclear responsibilities of the Presidency for the next four years.

There was the Grandpappy Voter, who merely aped the loyalty of his ancestors. The Good Man Voter was moved by some real or fancied virtue in the candidate without even knowing his program. The Horse-Racing Voter just wanted to vote for the winner. And the Throw the Rascals Out Voter had a grudge, usually mis-taken, against some official he believed to have erred.

It is sad to read letters like those of Max Spector (Oct. 10), in which he rationalizes why he will not vote for President or for Senator in New York. In effect, the damage this idea can do is colossal because it is a rejection of the privilege of the ballot. It says you accomplish more by not voting than by voting.

The principal reason he offers is that neither Presidential candidate Moynihan and Buckley "are as alike as two peas in a pod." If a person who is not illiterate cannot see a preference between Ford

To the Editor:

Dr. Walter Judd, the former Representative from Minnesota, once wrote: People often say that, in a democracy. decisions are made by a majority of the people. Of course, that is not true. Decisions are made by a majority of those who make themselves beard and who vote—a very different thing."

It is certainly a sad commentary on the state of citizenship in America, particularly in the midst of this Bicentennial celebration, that experts predict less than half of those eligible will vote on Election Day.

Americans have paid solemn homage this year to the virtues of the democratic process and the fact that the right of franchise is its keystone. The best way to protect that right is to exercise it. I urge all eligible citizens to heed the advice of the Advertising Council: "Celebrate the July 4th feeling on Nov. 2d. Vote. It's the Bicentermial thing to do."

despite the rescission of the steel increase, they are still swallowing part of the 7.7 percent cost increase they anticipate on the 1977 models. But it is precisely their assumption of a 7.7 percent rise in the price of producing the average vehicle that the Government's wage and price council is now questioning. The council does not see why auto costs should rise that much more than the 5 percent increase in the over-all rate of inflation that most economists are forecasting for 1977. This seems particularly true for autos when expected increases in volume, improvements in technology and greater efficiency are taken into account. It was in fact increases in volume and efficiency that accounted for the actual drop in automobile unit costs of production in 1976, when costs per vehicle fell $19. the first such drop in years. With that decline in unit costs, auto manufacturers raised their price of an average equipped car last year by $248-and, thanks to the upsurge of sales volume, profits climbed sharply.

General Motors has just announced third-quarter profits of $397 million on record sales of over $10 billion worldwide during the July-September quarter. Chrysler has also announced record sales and profits during the past quarter-and record results during the first nine months of 1976. Ford, hit by a strike, and American Motors, losing its market sbare, have not done so well.

General Motors' top executives said their excellent results reflected "the continued improvement in the United States economy and the solid demand for cars and trucks'-but did not mention the contribution made by increased prices despite the reduced unit costs resulting from greater volume. This is not to suggest that G.M. or the other auto companies should not have improved their profits in 1976 after a weak 1975-or that auto industry revenues have been outrunning costs over a longer period of time. On the contrary, a study by the wage and price council shows that during the past five years revenues per car have just about matched the

But that relative balance between costs and prices ought to maderline the council's warning that there is no justification for a further rise in auto prices in 1977.

The Larches

They are like giant candle fiames in the cool, damp woodlands now, preparing to shed their golden tan needles. Of all American trees of the pine family, only the larches and the bald cypresses are deciduous, and we have no cypress this far north. The larches-some call them tamaracks-are among our oldest trees; they and their kind felt the earth writhe and convulse; they knew the long, deep cold of the Ice Ages. And here they still are, brightening the woodland just when the maples, the aspens and the ash are becoming gray and brown specters of their summer selves.

. Man knew the larches early. Long ago he learned to use their wood for hot fire at the cave's mouth. Then he learned to use larch sills for his early dwellings, since it is slow to rot. And when he learned to travel by water he found that larch keel and ribs made the best boats, since the tough wood holds its shape. Men who lived in cold countries used the larch every day of their lives.

Some think of the larch as a cautious tree, but perhaps It were better called insistently individual. Although It belongs to an evergreen family, it sheds its needles every autumn, renews them every spring. A conifer, its cones are so small that squirrels are not even tempted by them. In the spring it has tiny pink and green blossoms that make the whole tree look as though it were blushing. And in autumn, right now, it is a flame of a tree, a tall, slim candle flame in a woodland where the colors of October are underfoot.

Irish Imbroglio

The Presidency of Ireland is principally a ceremonial post; its occupant bas no more political power than Britain's Queen. But one of his functions could be a vital safeguard in a democratic system: before signing into law a bill passed by Parliament, he can ask the Supreme Court to rule on its constitutionality.

President Cearbhall O Dalaigh, nominated by all parties after the death of Erskine B. Childers in 1974. and thus installed without a popular election, recently requested the Court's judgment on two emergency bills aimed at curbing Irish Republican Army terrorism. It was a logical move by Mr. O Dalaigh, himself a former Chief Justice, for the bills would greatly expand police powers, extending the period in which suspected terrorists could be held without charge from 48 hours to seven days.

The Court validated the bills but warned that if enforced loosely they could make serious "inroads into personal liberty." Outraged over the delay caused by Mr. O Dalaigh's referral, Defense Minister Patrick Donegan called the President a "thundering disgrace." Later he sought to apologize, but Mr. O Dalaigh refused to receive him and then resigned to protect, as he put it, "the dignity and independence" of the Presidency, plunging the Republic into a rare Constitutional crisis. This episode could hardly have come at a worse time for Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave's Fine Gael-Labor coalition. Ireland confronts an economic dilemma of proportions that even a Government report has called "intolerable": escalating unemployment, soaring inflation, a huge balance-of-payments deficit. Mr. Cosgrave has also been under heavy pressure from London to crack down harder on LRA, terrorism to ease Britain's task in Northern Ireland-pressure that was intensified after the assassination in July of the British Ambassador to Dublin.

Mr. O Dalaigh formerly belonged to the opposition Fianna Fail, still Ireland's biggest single party, which lought the anti-terrorist bills in Parliament and is now demanding new elections. Instead, the Government has announced only an election for a new President for Nov. 24. The Government's dilemma is the familiar one for a democracy in these times of trying to cope with ruthless terrorists while staying inside the Constitution.

It is doubtful if the delay caused by Mr. O Dalaigh's appeal to the Supreme Court seriously handicapped the fight against I.R.A. terror. But now the combination of Mr. Donegan's rashness and Mr. O Dalaigh's stubbornness has plunged Ireland into a political crisis that threatens

Heart of a Lottery

A recent (Oct. 18) Times letter to the editor noted that a sample of sixty New York lottery tickets netted only $4 in winnings. The author considered this low rate of return to be bad news for lottery players. Far from bad news, this low median rate of return is what makes playing the lottery at all worthwhile.

A return of $4 per sixty tickets compared to the long-run return of $36 per sixty tickets is not abnormal, as the author suggested, rather it is to be experted. Mr. Miller was wrong in assuming that his sample size of sixty is statistically significant. The variance of returns per ticket is so Jarge that a much larger sample is required to approximate the long-run

In layman's terms, we note that a sample of sixly tickets is unlikely to include any big winners, and the average rate of return per ticket is thus below average. A very large sample, however, would have some big winners. A few big winners would pull the average up to the expected longterm value. This large variance in short-term rates of return is what makes it a lottery. Would you buy sixty tickets if you knew you would always get $36 back?

Home Ownership: 'The Trend Is Up'

To the Editor: Your Oct. 21 editorial on housing needs through community develops contains glaring errors,

You state, "Only 15 percent of American families . . . can afford a new median priced home." That figure, widely discredited, has been contradicted by home purchases. The truth is that 65 percent of Americans own their homes. The trend is up. Home ownership expanded during the 1970's four times as fast as it did in the 1960's. Your statement on home prices is a half-truth. The other half is that purchasing power has increased at the same rate as prices.

You insist we have a "depressed housing market." The facts are opposite. More new single-family homes were started in the first nine months of 1976 than in all of last year or in all of 1974, 1970, 1969, 1968, 1967 or 1966.

Your major false assumption is that "a high volume of production" will solve the housing problems of lower-and middle-income families. Past overproduction created problems which we are now working off. Overproduction encouraged us to abandon slightly tarnished rity housing for the shiny new, farther out. Overproduction too often turned sound urban housing into boarded and empty deteriorating blight.

The Future With Ford

WASHINGTON - At stake for the natioo in the election is our economy, security and freedom. The choice is crucial, and I believe vastly more important than many voters understand.

Either we stick with the steady, responsible and proved leadership of President Ford, or we gamble on an untried, unsure challenger committed to a program of state-controlled socialism. Either we continue to hold the line on Government spending, taxation and Federal regulation, or we take another plunge down the road of extravagance, new Federal programs and social engineering in every area of human endeavor. Either we adopt a realistic attitude toward our present and future defense needs or we weaken our security by transferring huge amounts of dollars from preparedness to make-work social programs.

If we elect Gerald R. Ford, we will continue our acknowledged, steady progress toward a balanced and sound economy and reduced unemployment based on permanent, productive jobs in the private sector. If we elect Jimmy Carter, we will be traveling in the direction that Britain traveled with its Labor Government, nationalized industries and social engineering, and, of course, its shrinking pound and ruinous economy. The British Government adopted precisely the kinds of excessive economic policies that are spelled out in great detail in the Democratic Party platform of 1976.

I have heard all of Mr. Carter's glib talk about fiscal responsibility and about balancing the Federal budget (sometime). But I have also beard his advocacy of a national health-insurance program, his commitment to the Humphrey-Hawkins bill for providing everyone willing to work with a Government job, and support for other programs in his party's platform that, an additional $120 billion a year.

By Barry Goldwater

AFL-CIO leader George Meany, coosumer advocate Ralph Nader and other far leftists bell-bent on nationalizing the nation's oil industry, railroads, airlines and trucking firms.

There is no doubt in my mind that, if Mr. Carter is elected, his administration will be run by elements in this country who will not stand for a course of action that would reduce the size of our Federal deficits and haltthe enlargement of the welfare state.

His election would join the White House irrevocably to the liberal majorities in Congress that are behnlden to the bosses of organized labor and the extremists in the fields of consumerism and environmental control. And despite all his rhetoric, I canoot picture Jimmy Carter vetoing such ruinous and ill-advised legislation as hills to break up our integrated oil industry or to provide billions of dollars for new health, education and welfare programs.

I cannot sea any realistic chance nf our system of checks and balances working for the good of the nation's taxpayers io an alliance between an arrogant liberal majority in the Congress and a labor President.

One of the great values in having Gerald Ford in the White House is his courage in deciding which laws ground out by the big spenders in Congress are worthy of Presidential approval His record of vetoes is a record of resolute devotion to the best interests of the taxpayer. Time and again he has saved this nation from irresponsible legislation that would eggravate, not relleve our economic and social problems.

There is one extremely important fact for the American people to understand: There is no dramatic or specreduce inflation or provide the kind And I have noted his allegiance to of economic recovery this nation of economic recovery the economic recovery this nation of economic recovery the econom

They must understand that the things proposed by Jimmy Carter only sound like cure-alls and that they will not stand the test of close inspection. The task of bringing this nation together economically is a slow one, and it must be hased on proved principles of fiscal responsibility. These are beiog followed deliberately and doggedly by President Ford despite enormous pressures on him to turn loose the Federal treasury in an attempt to buy economic recovery and prosperity.

One of the great unchallenged concepts put forward repeatedly by Mr. Carter is that we can have increased Federal speoding and a balanced hudget by achieving a full-employment economy.

Jimmy Carter and his running-mate, Senator Walter F. Mondale, know as we do that a full-employment ecocomy has never been echieved in this country and probably never will be. The closest we have ever come was in the midst of an ell-out war when many in the lebor force were in the military and our munitions industries were running at capacity.

To achieve a full-employment economy in peacetime would require enormous expenditures for make-work Government jobs on a vast scale. This in turn would give us the kind of inflation that is plaguing many countries of Europe and could plece us in a position compareble to Britain's.

Barry Goldwater, junior Republican Senator from Arizona, was his party's Presidential candidate in 1964.

On the Waterfront

By William Safire

Campaigning in South Brooklyn's waterfront area, straining to be heard through e public-address system that did oot work, a dispirited Jimmy Carter hurried through his stump speech until he came to the Wallacelike line he likes best, exploiting littleguy resentment against "the hig-shot crocks" who never get punished.

But the line drew only embarrassed smiles. For thet day last week, the Secret Service meo did not know whether to keep their eyes out front or on the crowd with the candidate on the platform.

Mr. Carter had just warmly shaken the hand of Anthony Scotto, who had introduced him. The good-looking, upand-coming Mr. Scotto is vice president of the International Longshoremen's Association, and has recently been appointed chairman of the advisers to labor's Committee on Political Education in New York State, the group now more important than any other to the Carter campaign.

Mr. Scotto is also the soo-in-law of, and local union successor to, "Tough Tony" Anastasia, of the Legendary Mafia family. The late Carlo Gambino was reportedly a guest at the Scotto-Anastasia Plaza Hotel wedding in 1957. In 1969, Mr. Scotto appeared on a list published by the Department of Justice as a "capo" in the Gambino Mafia "family." In 1970, Mr. Scotto exercised his privilege against selfincrimination in refusing to answer questions about the Mafia to the State Joint Legislative Committee oo Crime.

What does that prove about Mr. Scotto? Nothing. He is one of the able and articulate "oew breed" of union leaders, and vigorously denies ever having had Mafia ties. A longtime supporter of Gov. Hugh Carey, Mr. Scotto was responsible for passage of an Albany bill limiting the powers of the Waterfront Commission, As an activist with growing "clout" he will one day surely have a haod in choosing Democratic candidates for District Attorney and judicial posts, Above all, Mr. Scottn seeks respectability. He achieved some last month when The New York Times published a well-reasoned and civicboostering article under his hyline on its Op-Ed page. He achieved much more last week when be showed himself able to produce the Democratic caodidate for President in his waterfront bailiwick, after so many other candidates heve for decades avoided association with the LLA.

What does this prove about Mr. Carter? A great deal. He began bis campaign on the issue of trust, stressing that he was beholden to no special interests. He concludes his campaign totally heholden to organized labor. the most effective special interest of all-even to the extent of draping his mantle of purity and integrity over Mr. Scotto and his associates.

The reason for the Carter willingness to go wherever and appear with whomever labor dictates is plain; whether or not he squeaks by on Election Day, Mr. Carter has decisively lost the 1976 Presidential campaign. Since Labor Day, his support has plummeted 15 Gallup points, more than in any other national campaign. In desperation, he is reduced in the closing days to ruoning against Hoover "hard times" (the gutter answer to "Democrat wars") and trying to bribe voters with hints of an "inevitable" tax cut

Since "trust" is nn longer workiog for him, Mr. Carter must rely on his other issue: competence. The voter is asked to believe that Mr. Carter would he a more competent administrator than Mr. Ford.

If a campaign offers anything, it . offers voters a fair standard of comparison on the subject of which candidate has been the more competent campaigner. It may be that a great campaigner would not be a great President, but it is certain that a man who cannot get his campaign together is not likely to be able to get his country together.

The Carter campaign appeared to be managed by Chicken Little, starting ... nff to the right, lurching to the left. veering back right as the sky seemed to fall. He started off as the enemy of the Establishment and wound up its supplicant, mass-producing puddings without themes, dragging in Nixoo the way a Nixon would drag in a Nixon. The candidate was left wrung out and fearful, his support ehhing, his only hope the election would be held in time.

In contrast, the Ford campaign was workmanlike effort. The errors came by accident rather than as a result of mistakes in strategy. From acceptance speech to media blitz, its thematic message has been consistent, and the President wishes he bad a few more days to let Mr. Carter sink further.

In the test of competence that a campaign provides, Mr. Ford passed and Mr. Carter flunked. We have seen Mr. Ford learn, stumble, grow and develop in the campaign of 1976. emerging more the leader than before. Mr. Carter's early admirers have had to watch their candidate shrink in stature every dey.

On the way to the polls, the thought of a newly confident President telling a surprised and impressed audience thet "the future is our frieod" offers . more hope, and a better choice, than the thought of e shaken looer reciting his routine about "blg-shot crooks" on the Brooklyn waterfront.

Less Costly Reform

By Bob Kuttner

WASHINGTON - For twn generations, American liberals bave associated reform with big Federal programs. But that era is quietly ending, and Jimmy Carter could be an appropriate symbol.

The changing liberal view of big government reflects a scarcity of new Federal dollars and a disillusion with flawed social programs. Moreover, during eight years of conservative Administrations in Washington, reform constituencies have rediscovered state and local government.

Several state administrations now contain a new brand of reformer, properly skeptical of more programs and forced by a paucity of resources to become more resourceful.

California for example, curbs spending but enacts laws recognizing farmworker unions and protecting Its coastline from exploitation. Vermont changes its tax code to discourage land speculation. Seattle officials calculate that, for every dollar of Federal aid. local banks invest more than a hundred, so they shrewdly move to influence local lending patterns rather than grovel at the Federal trough for -Surprise! Reform doesn't cost new public money, and liberal constituencies find they can do without another Federal program.

Since Franklin D. Roosevelt, of course, reformers have looked to Washington because they have been outgumned elsewhere. In the Depression, the tactic made sense. But somewhere along the way, tactic was mistaken for principle. Centralization grew into an odd article of faitheven though the progressive tradition in America had been decentralist since Jefferson and Jackson.

At one time, too, the Keynesians were natural allies of the programplanners. A bigger Federal budget was prescribed to stimulate the economy, and the new dollars would finance bigger and better programs. Both assumptions are now played out. The Keynesians are satisfied with the enlarged public sector, and the liberals have a dirty little secret: Many of the social programs are turkeys. Not only have the big programs drained public money from basic public aervices, the the program option has enabled reformers to avoid geouine reform. Thus, instead of a redistribution of wealth, there was a poverty program The medical-care program enacted in 1965 suited all of the special interests. The American Medical Association, the insurance carriers, bospitals and pharmaceutical houses each got a piece. Rather than altering the system of fee-for-service medicine, the Government merely picked up the hill for the aged and the indigent. Predictably, Medicaid mills abounded, exotic diseases proved more interesting than prevention, and costs soured.

Or consider bousing. Until the 1960's, government simply built public housing for the poor, and insured mortgages for the middle class. The newer housing programs supposedly created incentives for entrepreneurs to do well by doing good in partnership with government. But it doesn't work. The incentives are so lucrative, the supervision so cumbersome, that a smart developer can succeed even where housing fails.

Indeed, bureaucratic liberalism often blends the very worst features of capitalism and socialism: entrepreneurship without risk Instead of marrying the entrepreneur's energy to the public purpose of government, these programs harness the bureaucrat's sloth to the capitalists' greed. Reformers, bowever, are beginning to appreciate that the shift away from bureaucracy isn't necessarily reactionary. In the progressive heyday, before they invented "funding," reformers had an agenda of structural changes designed to make the free market operate in the public interest. That egenda is still there.

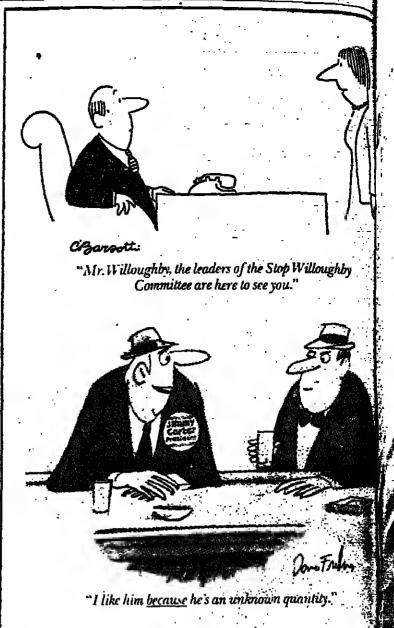

Governor Carter is not a conventional liberal, but he has a basic populist credential. He seems to resent privilege: the big guys who never go to jail, never pay their share of taxes; the private wealth amid public want He also shares the old-time populist distrust of big government, though he is more defensive about that theme as be pitches for the liberal vote. In 1976, unfortunately, a candidate who fevors social justice but mistrusts bureaucracy seems inconsistent. If Jimmy Carter can demonstrate the compatibility of these popular twin themes, he will not only get electedhe will do eo immense service to the foundering liberals by relieving them of their half-hearted defense of swollen

And much to his delight, his brash, controversial style has prompted comparisons with his flamboyant idol the late William Zeckendorf Sr., who actually developed projects as striking as those Mr. Trump is proposing. The proposed projects are:

Commenting on the Commodore Hotel deal, the expert said he thought Mr. Trump was "on the threshold of the greatest real estate coup of the last miserable three years; if it goes through, you could call him 'the William Zeckendorf of Bad Times."

The other day, Mr. Trump, who says he is publicity shy, allowed a reporter to accompany him on what he de-scribed as a typical work day. Going Home to History at 80, Ruth Gordon Recalls 'Her Side'

QUINCY, Mass., Oct. 31-In September 1914 at the age of 17, Ruth Gordon Jones left her home in the Wollaston section of Quincy, and, bolding a oneway ticket, she took the Fall River Line boat-train to New York City to become an actress. Last night, on her 80th birthday, Roth Gordon returned home—as a star of stage and screen, a best-selling author (her latest book, an autobiography, "My Side," was published last week), playwright and screen writer — in collaboration with her husband, Garson Kanin. Quincy turned out to welcome her,

The weekend birthday tribute, with a ball and a banquet in her honor, was also the occasion for Joseph J. La Rala, the Mayor of Quincy, to announce the inauguration of a project to create the Ruth Gordon Center for the Performing Arts in Quincy. The center will be constructed on land donated by the Adams family.

In Business at 80

John Adams is Quincy's favorite son, and it was clear from the homecoming that Ruth Gordon is Quincy's favorite daughter. She is, in fact, a rola model in her native city. As Quincy School students are admonished by their teachers: "If you don't stand up straight, you won't grow up to be Ruth Gordon." The fact is that Miss Gordon has always had strong roots in Quincy. Addressing the guests at her birthday ball in the State Street South Auditorium last night, she showed them a large embroidered doily that she had treasured since her Massachusetts childhood. The doily had been placed under her first 17 birthday cakes. "We put it away carefully," she said, "and that's wby it lasted for 80 years." It was, she added later, "the gossamer thread to a bleak October morning when I became a citizen,"

Then she turned to her most current concern: 'The 1st of October, the last month of being 79, I was dangerously ill. I didn't cry, but I was scared-at 79 to be dangerously ill." After treat-ment, a cutback on her daily activities, and the cancellation of a nationwide tour to promote her book, "the doctor said 'You're well, pursue your life as you've always done. . . " Looking healthy and vigorous, she said, "On the Looking blink at 79 and back in business at by accepting telephonad and cabled congratulations and bouquets of flowers and then, with her husband, walked across Boston Common and checked local book stores "to see if my book was in a good spot; It was in a great spot." Then she ambled past the Colonial Theater, where 65 years ago sitting in the back of the balcony watching Hazel Dawn In "The Pink Lady," she heard "my voices." "Joan heard hers at Domremy, mine came through st the corner of Boylston and Tremont, Boston, Mass. My voices said go on stage, Ruth go on stage!

In the evening Miss Gordon dressed up in her lucky gown, "my pink satin Givenchy with feathers around you know where, which I were to the Oscars, and I won it"—in 1968 for 'Rosemary's Baby."

Outside the auditorium was sn enormous crowd of admirers, teen-agers as well as senior citizens, some of whom remembered her from her great roles on stage-as Nora in "A Doll's House," Natasha in "The Three Sisters" -others of whom know her only for her recent film work, such as "Harold and Maude" and "Where's Poppa?"

Tonight Miss Gordon was honored

de Ville Restaurant in nearby Randolph. The event was climaxed with a speech from the guest of honor. She thanked Quincy and reminisced all the way back to her birth. That, she admitted, was "hearsay," "I don't remember 'My Side' until I was four, That was 1900 and I got organized. I knew I was going to have the damnest great things happen

Earlier, in conversation, other memories were evoked. In her long career, she said, there has been "a lot of up and a lot of down

Vivid Details of Llfe

Asked how she remembered so much vivid detail from her life she said, "It's vital! If you jump out of a window, you always remember it. You might be saved. I always kept a lower, a fulf dlary until the asy that Thornton Wilder died. That was my last entry. I cannot keep s journal now. That was a mortal wound. Ha was a friend since 1929. He said, "it's time you tangled with a classic," he chose 'A Doll's House.' He came down from New Hampshire put aside 'Our Town' and wrote 'A Doll's House' for me; it was the best adaptation of a foreign play, an extraordinary triumph. Opening night [in 1937] was the absolute peak of my career. I went to bed with the highest heart in the whole world.

In her 81st year Miss Gordon is still "going strong." Her next engagement on Broadway will probably be in "Ho! Ho! Ho!," a new play by Ruth Gordon, starring Ruth Gordon, and directed by Garson Kanin.

There is of course no mistaking Ruth Gordon—a unique and irresistible force of nature. "I just love acting," sbe said. "I really act to please me. I can't wait to get on stage, I don't have any bobbies. I don't think I have a tslent for vacations. If you live long enough, you are your work and your work is you."

In tates the number of undecided seemed to be rising. The outould be decided by the final day iping, election-eve television appeals and the success of the contenders in getting backers to the polls. [1:5-6.]

President Ford was characterized by Jimmy Carter as a man with an undistinguished record in Congress and the White House. At a breakfast rally in Dallas, Mr. Carter said that his opponent was a Congressman for 25 years—and can any of you remember one piece of legislation be sponsored?" His audience of more than 1,000 Texans replied with a loud "No!" [1:4.]

Two welcome surprises greeted Mr. Ford when be attended a Catholic mass in Buffalo. The first was a strong antiabortion pastoral letter that was sympathetic to the President. The second was a welcome to the Polish-American church that absolved him of his campaign misstep of having insisted that Communist states of Eastern Europe were free of Soviet domination. [1:5.]

With barbed pleasantries, Senator James L. Buckley and Daniel P. Moynihan debated issues in their final television confrontation of the New York Senate campaign. Mr. Buckley said his labeling of bis challenger as "professor" was "respectful." Mr. Moynihan said the Senator had vowed to beat him so "liberalism would never again show its ugly head in New York." [1:2-4.]

Campaign funds, usually in big amounts, have been given to more than 250 candidates for Congress by New Yorkers and New York City-based organizations. New Yorkers have contributed heavily to Democrats and Republicans, liberals, conservatives and thosa who supported and opposed the city when it sought $2.3 billion in Federal loans. [1:3.]

A sniper started shooting from a barricaded apartment toward a restaurant in the Hudson Valley town of Mechaoicsville. A 90-minute gun battle between the gunman and dozens of policemeo left two killed, 10 injured and the assailant charged with murder. The sniper, Kenyon W. Business/Finance

Pessimism is spreading among business and financial experts in Europe over prospects for the world economy and its ability to cope with rising problems of managing debts, slow growth and increasing unemployment. Analysts say there is a lack of international leadership to deal with the issues. [65:6.]

The newest popular tax shelter, leasing syndications for mining coal, bas been opposed by the Internal Revenue Service. Coal leases are the last broad chance for high-bracket taxpayers to gain immediate tax deductions totaling up to four times their cash investment. The LR.S. bas proposed rules to prevent investors from paying coal-mining roy-alties in advance. This would delay tax deductions until the coal is sold. [65:3.]

Individual investors are expected to react coolly to new notes and bonds totaling $6 billion that the Treasury will offer this week in contrast to heavy demand for previous offers. If interest rates bold steady, it's probable that the new three-year notes will yield about 61/4 percent, seven-year notes will yield a bit more than 7 percent and long-term bonds about 7% percent. When, fifteen days later, on June 4. Mr. Chamberlin was freed of the writ and did take off, he established two records. First, he carried the first passenger on a non-stop trans-Atlantic flight and, second, in flying from New York to Eiseleben. Germany, he established a new distance mark of 3,911 miles.

Actually, because storms had driven the plane to far off its course the distance flown was oearly 4,500 miles. In 1927 this was an almost unbelievable distance, for planes were single-engined, small and without reserve gasoline capacity.

The sighting yesterday came less than 24 hours after Mr. Gainer's distress signal—the first word from him in 17 days was picked up on Saturday by a Dutch ocean-going tugboat and passed on to the Cost Guard.

The Coast Guard then dispatched a C-130 long-range aircraft from Elizabeth, N.J. After an overnight stop in Puerto Rico, the plane left at daybreak to search for Mr. Gainer and found him about 12:30

He is John Bainbridge of Dartmouth Devonshire, executive chef of tee 66,850-ton liner, and he calculates that 160 tons of food supplies will be loaded before the ship sails for Cherbourg and Southampton in a few hours.

The passenger list on a crisp autumn afternoon has more than 1,400 names, many of the travelers combining a vacation with a European business trip. As they file on board to be escorted to their statercoms, the public address system of ers them a jaunty version of "Life Is Just a owl of Cherries." It means one extra day to sample such fare as lobster, foie gras, prime meats, pheasant, grouse, frog's legs. French pastries, French wine and twoounce Scotches in the bar at $1 apiece. And one extra day of luxury in the $7.610 Trafalgar Suite for four.

This then is the last of the bigtime spleodors of the sea. The day is long gone when Cunard had 14 to 16 ships in regular trans-Atlantic service. Gone are the liners that flew so many different national flags.

The QE2 is the last great passenger ship in regular trans-Atlantic service in a noble line that included Britain's Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth; France's Normandie, Ile de France and France; Germany's Europa and Bremen; Italy's Rex and Michelangelo; and America's United States. The last named, after nearly a quarter-century, still bolds the blue-ribboo speed record for trans-Atlantic liners with an average speed of more than 35 knots (about 41 miles an hour).

Cunard and its predecessor company have been in the trans-Atlantic passenger business for 100 yours. Chef Bainbridge has been aboard one Cunard liner or nther—including the since 1939. enger business for 136 years, and

"We think with affection of those ships," he said. "There was something very solid and, shall we say, stately about them—like the stately old country homes of England."

And if jet planes had not come along, "it's possible those bloody ships could be running today, they were built so well," Mr. Bainbridge maintains. As for aupplying the seven-year-old QE2 he says: "We bave the best of three markets for our supplies-New Ynrk for meats and fresh vegetables; Cherbourg for French wines, snails and other specialties, and Southampton for caviar shipped from Russia, for partridge, grouse and pheasant."

Tony Kinsella of Southampton, the QE's deputy botel manager, says proudly of the Queens Grill, limited to 196 first-class passengers: "No shadow of a doubt, it's one of the finest restaurants in the world."

More Air Than Ocean

The QE2, richly carpeted and bandsomely decorated in bright colors, can accommodate 1,815 passengers on 13 decks—about 600 in first-class and the rest in tourist. The crew totals more than 1,000. There are three dining

On the bridge, a large two-compartment area with such sophisticated equipment as three radars, automatic stabilizer controls, automatic pilot, satellite navigation system and weather maps printed-out by facsimile radio, be has a grand view of the sea.

But in an age of tropical crulsing be notes that he has been flying by com-mercial jet "about 60,000 miles a year for the last three years" to get to and from the bridge of various Cunard liners. Most of that mileage was in going to and from a smaller 14,000-Juan, P. R.

It ados up to more miles than he has been going by sea despite some round-the-world voyages. But much in the tradition of the old-time trans-

Atlantic lioer captains, be has, he says, made "Oh, 300 . . . 400 . . . 500 trans-Atlantic crossings at least."

How does this 963-root ship handle? Captain Arnott beams: "She handles so beautifully, just like a yacht."

He describes the QE2 as far more sophisticated in her boiler equipment and considerably cheaper to operate than the majestic France, her superliner rival that had to be retired as too expensive. "I think the QE2 will contioue for a good number of years, really." She is several years younger than the France.

Forthcoming Voyages

Four specialty chefs from the France have been taken on by the QE2, which is scheduled for 15 roundtrip trans-Atlantic crossings next year. There will also be cruises to the Caribbean from New York, leaving Dec. 2 and Dec. 18, plus an 81-day glova-circling trip from New York starting Jan. 15 and including a three-day stop at Canton on the

For the final trans-Atlantic crossings this year and for one of the round trips next May, Cunard is offering an offseason bargain rate: the equivalent of a one-way free passage for round-trip passengers. Here are some examples: In tourist class an outside stateroom may cost $650 a person on a double occupancy basis for the mund trip, or $1,300 for a couple; a first-class accommodation may cost $1,145 a person round-trip on a double occupancy basis, or $2,290 for a couple.

Campaigns by the Republicans in Illinois, Missouri and Indiana May Draw President's Backers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31-In a Presidential clection year, gubernatorial confests rarely attract much national attention, This year there are only 14 such contests, and, with one exception, they involve middle-sized or small states of modest political impact.

But with the race between President Ford and Jimmy Carter apparently very close, strong Republican gubernatorial candidates could help the President carry a block of three Middle Western states with a total of 51 electoral votes. The Republicans favored to win are

James R. Thompson in Illinois, Gov. Christopher S. Bond of Missouri and Gov. Otis R. Bowen of Indiana. If they attract substantial majorities, President Ford's prospects could be considerably enchanced.

In North Carolina, the only other state of any size choosing a governor on Tuesday, Lieut. Gov. James B. Huni Jr., a Democrat, is favored and could provide

Democratic Organizations in New Jersey Called Key to Carter's Chances There

By Joseph F. Sullivan On the eve of the election in New Jersey, leaders of both parties believe that ident Ford is the more popular candidate and that if Jimmy Carter is to win it will depend on how well the urban Democratic organizations do their jobs.
With Mr. Ford showing momentum, the Democratic campaigns in the Democratic strongholds bave changed from pro-Cart-

"Jimmy Carter has not become a household word," Jack Finn, the Jersey City Democratic chairman, said. Betty Ford did just what anyone else would do on a Sunday on Orchard Street on the Lower East Side: she looked over the goods for sale on the sidewalk. With her on tour was State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz.

Betty Ford Meets Few Cheers In Orchard Street Campaigning

Betty Ford, campaigning yesterday on the Lower East Side, received a generally cordial but unenthusiastic reception. There was not much cheering, but she encountered some booing during a busy walking tour of Orchard Street.

The street was, as usual, thick with shoppers early in the afternoon when hirs. Ford arrived to campaign. The curiosity of the crowd seemed stirred by the phalanx of police officers, Secret Service agents and television who accompanied the First

She shook hands, engaged several men and women in cooversation and patted children warmly. But Mrs. Ford, her head partly covered by a bandana, appeared somewhat tired, too.

"We need jobs, not promises," one man shouted within bearing range of Mrs. Ford, although she appeared not to have heard him, "We want Jimmy Carter," another man yelled. At this point, a member of Mrs. Ford's enlourage, who was holding a sign that read, "Ford-Dole," waved his cardboard placard energetically. There was booing and hissing,

"Throw Ford out!" one spectator shouted hoarsely, but Mrs. Ford had already passed him.

Although the First Lady had originally been scheduled to walk at least a couple of blocks up Orchard Street, which is lined with shops and frequented by, among others, large num-bers of Jewish people, her tour was cut short after she had campaigned for barely half a block.

Mrs. Ford was escorted by Secret Service agents to a waiting limousine and taken to her next appointment, 73d Street. Bul before she left the Lower East Side, Mrs. Ford elevated herself on the sideboard of her car and waved and smiled to the crowd. Many waved back but there were few cheers. Earlier, before ber tour of Orchard

Street, the First Lady visited Ratner's Restaurant at 138 Delancey Street, a culinary institution in what was once a Jewish quarter on the Lower East Side. Her reception here was restrained, and in the brunch-hour crowd there were many who seemed to relish their blintzes and sour cream more than Mrs. Ford's campaigning. But State At-torney General Louis J. Lefkowitz, who accompanied the First Lady, thought her campalgning was a success.

"She was received well," he said, after both he and Mrs. Ford had enjoyed cheese, pineapple and blueberry blintzes. Mrs. Ford asked a waiter for some tea with lemon, but the waiter apparently misheard her, for he brought the First Lady, a glass of certain and the First Lady a glass of scotch and lemon. Mrs. Ford's staff seemed less than delighted at his mistake.

Mrs. Ford told some reporters that she thought New York State "looks like a tossup," between her busband and Jimmy Carter, the Democratic Presidential candidate,

From the Lower East Side, Mrs. Ford traveled to a meeting of the Board of New York Rabbis on the Upper East Side, where she said that President Ford had Instructed Secretary of State Henry A. Rissinger to meut next Friday with the Soviet Ambassador to the United States and discuss the question of immigration by Soviet Jews.

"I know the word will get through."
Mrs, Ford said, "We want more immigration. She then shook hands

HARTFORD, Oct. 31-Even behind the rave campaign rhetoric, the Republicant expect to do well in the elections in Conce necticut on Tuesday, almost certainly winning another term in the United States Senate for Lowell P. Weicker J. and hanging on to the two of the six Connecticut seats in the Umted States a House of Representatives that the Republish licans now hold.

They expect to do well in the General Assembly where they were almost wiper out in the post-Watergate mood two years ago, when Ella T. Grasso was elected Governor in a Democratic landslident Outoumbered in the General Assembly: now by 29 to 7 in the State Senate and 118 to 33 in the House of Representatives; the Republicans feel they have nowhere to go but up in a close election. The close race this year has made politicians cautious, privately, about calling the winner in the Presidential elections the winner in the Presidential elections.

The Republicans take comfort even interest that, the indecisive voter who makes up his mind in the voting booth, they feel, will come down mostly likely on the side; of the man be knows better or feels more comfortable with. That indecisivenessing the comfortable with the forms President Ford in the composition of the composition

G.O.P. Controls Small Towns

Of the new total of 1,669,360 registered voters, 625,419, or 37.5 percent, are Democrats: 614,973, or 36.8 percent, are unaffiliated, and 428,214, or 25.7 percent; are Republicans. Voter registration is the highest in Connecticut's history.

The Democrats have won every Presidential election here in the last 20 years but the last one, when Connecticut's conservative, blue-collar Democrats could a not bring themselves to vole for Senatot George McGovern. Because the Republicans more or less control the smaller towns, the Democrats . must win by big margins in the bigger cities to get their statewide candidates into office and to deliver electors to their residential candidate.

But the Democrats are in trouble in lew Haven, where Arthur T. Barbieri is still angry at having been turned out as Demogratic town chairman earlier this ear by a coalition of blacks and liberals and Yale students and faculty members: But the Italian vote still matters most in New Haven, and some of Mr. Barbleri's friends may go to extremes, even voting Republican, to show their displeasure over the direction city politics has taken.

In Waterbury, the Democrats have also split into two factions, and the voters use have been threatening to punish both by staying away from the polls. They are the management of the city's fiscal after

Polish- and Italian-American populations; :: people may be rejuctant to vote because they are unenthusiastic about both major Presidential candidates. A low turnout in the city would hurt the Democrats more ?: than the Republicans.

What's Good for the Primary

When Geoffrey G. Peterson, the Democralic Congressional candidate in the Fourth District, which is lower Fairfield County, was fighting Charles B. Tisdate in a primary contest for the nomination. he talked of Mr. Tisdale as a tool of the bosses in Bridgeport, Now Mr. Peterson in could use those votes in Bridgeport, and they may be slow in coming. The result may well be good news for Representa-tive Slewart B. McKinney, a Republican seeking his fourth term. In Hartford, an efficient Democratic organization will turn out the voters for immy Carter and everybody else on the a Democratic ticket. But a growing problem for the Democrats in Hartford and in all the hig cities is that the blacks and Puerto ; Ricans who have moved into the cities n increasing numbers in recent years are not always eager to vote.

Connecticut has an enviable record of citizen participation in government, but an erosion process has started. In 1966, e. the turnout for the Presidential election was 93.3 percent. In 1972 it slipped to 85.5 percent. This year, in the black sections of Hartford, less than 45 percent of the eligible population is registered to vote.

But the candidates do not stop trying. In most particularly Gloria Schaffer, the secretary of the State and the Democratic candidate challenging Senator Weicker with a more vigorous campaign than has been seen in years.

She ran ahead of everyone else on erther ticket two years ago, collecting more votes than anyone in Connecticut's histoexcept for the late Senator Thomas Dodd, who got more in 1964 when he was elected to a second term.

But the wall has gone up in front of Mrs. Schaffer, as the saying among polities cians goes. Senator Weicker is a strong. familiar figure to the voters, mainly because of his aggressiveness and persistence as a member of the Senate Watergate panel three years ago.

In one of the 30-minute paid television commercials that became centerpieces of Mr. Ford's final days of campaigning, he arranged to have Joe Garagiola, the garrulous former baseball player who is now a sportscaster and television performer, ask how the Ford White House was distinct from that in former President Richard M. Nixon, "Under President Ford there's not an imperial White House,' the President replied. "There's no pomp, no ceremony or dictatorial au-

There was still ceremony. At every rally, his arrival was marked by the playing of "Hoil to the Cluef" or "Ruffles and Flourishes" or both, From every campaign lectern there hung the portable replica of the Presidential and an outsize copy dominated the backdrop on Mr. Furd's chatty, 30minute television specials.

overly consequential ones, of dictatorial authority being exercised in Mr. Ford's behalf. One newspaper correspondent had tried since September 1975, when two attempts were made on Mr. Ford's life, to interview the President at length for a hiography that would be published in the event of Mr. Ford's death. Senior White House aides expressed adament opposition to the request—Secretary of Defense Donald L. Rumsfeld, then the White House chief of staff, pnunded a fist on his desk and said, "Never!"—until the jour-nalist explained directly in the President why the project was important. Mr. Ford said six months ago that he would be delighted to accommodate the request. But his aides had refused ever since to grant it.

On the afternoon of the final Presidential campaign debate, as the President and Mr. Ford visited the site. Mrs. Ford penciled a pleasant note ("May the best man win."1 to Mr. Carter at the Democratic nominee's lectern. When reporters spotted the note and began scribbling copies, a White House official tore the note from the note pad. Only after the action was questioned were arrangements made to for-ward the note in Mr. Carter.

When Marityn Berger, the White House correspondent for NBC News, began to film a news report aboard the Presidential plane last week, Ron Nessen, the White House press secre-tary, objected that it would violate tradition to do so, Miss Berger, who had made certain her colleagues at rival networks would not object, persisted until the filming was disrupted by Mr. Nessen shouting, "Not on my

The majesty and ceremony of the Presidency were displayed to the utmost by Mr. Ford's managers because they knew it was smart politics to stress incumbency, to encourage voters, as Mr. Nessen once stated it, "In keep the President you've got."

the economy would not be reached until 1984, a calculation he based on a 5 percent annual increase in the gross national product.

The virtual debate—on a program in which the candidates were questioned by two WNBC interviewers—came as polls were generally reporting Mr. Moynihan in the lead. A survey hy The New York Times published Oct. 24, which was hased on interviews from Oct. 15 to Oct. 20 with 1,755 adults throughout the state, indicated a six-point lead for Mr. Moynihan.

But Senator Buckley contended that "momentum" was coming his way, especially on suburban Long Island and in Westchester, and he avowed confidence in his re-election. He said that the polls were based on voting patierns of two and four years ago, but that major shifts were occurring.

On the issues, Mr. Moynihan asserted the national need was "jobs, jobs," Senator Buckley contended that a Democratic victory would boost taxes.

The 53-year-old Senator said he, as a cooservative, and New York's other Senator, Jacob K. Javits, a liberal Republican, could "work both sides of the lad been trying to airrange debates with Mr. Moynihan and to get his message across. York State in so much trouble and why have "the overwhelming number of conservative newspapers upstate and downstate" opposed Mr. Buckley's return?

Mr. Moynihan said The Daily News had asserted that Senator Buckley "let New York down badly last year" when New York City faced the threat of bankruptcy. Senator Buckley said he had obtained "constructive public works," helping get a Westway project approved for New York City, spurring $1 billion in funds for sewage-treatment plants, aiding the Brooklyn Navy Yard industrial park on jobs and seeking defense cootracts. The Democratic Humphrey-Hawkins bill for Federal public-service jobs, Sena-

One final thought:

"It is not enough for anyone to say 'trust me.'

Trust is not having to guess what a candidate means.

Trust is not being all things to all people, but being the same thing to all people.

Trust is leveling with the people before the election about what you're going to do after the election.

Trust is saying plainly and simply what you mean—and meaning what you say.

Trust must be earned."

-President Gerald R. Ford

Undecided Voters Could Hold Key

Jimmy Carter is as close as the polls pendent. show, then the election my well rest in The question in the survey that correthe hands of a small group of voters who lated most closely with Presidential are older, earn less money and are less choice was the one that asked the voters educated than the average voter, and who are much more likely than most to feel with on the issues. Of the Ford voters, tha President is just a figurehead leader.

They are the undecided voters, who still constitute about one in 10 voters, according to the final New York Times CBS News poll. How are they likely to rote?

With on the issues. Of the Ford voters, 86 percent agreed with the President and 82 percent of the Carter voters agreed with the Democratic challenger.

How did the undecided voters respondingly to the final New York Times with the Democratic challenger.

An analysis of their attitudes and backgrounds gives little reason to think they will vote overwhelmingly for one andidate or the other. In some respects hey resemble Carter voters, in other repects Ford voters. They differ from both vainly in the fact they are considerably ess likely to vote tomorrow.

While there seem to he many more indecided voters this year than in the ast, they are not uolike the undecided most elections—politically unsophistiated, confused about the issues, unpreictable and skeptical that their votes ave, any real meaning. As a group, the orld of politics and government is a ar away and mysterious thing to them. hey are not only much less likely to ave a Presidential choice hut also less kely to have opinions on the issues. So is doubly difficult to forecast their havior.

Like Average Voter

Philosophically, they are like the aver-se voter. Twenty-one percent described emselves as liberal, 45 percent as modarresponding figures for all voters are 5 percent Republican, 44 percent inde-adent, 38 percent Democratic) were estimate their potential impact on the dy slightly different from the electorate outcome.

If the race between Gerald Ford and at large. They are somewhat more inde-

Mr. Carter's views and 28 percent Mr. Ford's, with the remainder saying neither, both or that they did not know. Asked About Experience

Similarly, asked if they felt experience was a more important Presidential quali-fication than having new ideas, the uode-cided voters were divided, 42-42.

But on economic issues, which are playing a major role in this year's elec-tion, the picture seemed to favor Mr. Carter. The undecided voters, who tend to come from low-income, blue-collar hackgrounds, were more likely than the average voter, and considerably more likely than the average voter, and considerably more likely than the Ford voters, to feel the American economy is getting worse. (However, a plurality still approve of Mr. Ford's handling of the economy.) Also of potential benefit to Mr. Carter is that, unlike the rest of the electorale, the undecided voters felt that unemploy: ment is a more important problem than inflation, by 47 to 42 percent.

Given the fact that those who still had

California State Finance Chairman Herb Hafif escorts Carter throughout the crowd on the night of the largest single fund-raiser of the Carter campaigu.

About the Author

Herb Hafif was selected by the American Trial Bar as the oation's outstanding Consumer Advocate in 1972. He formed the first Environmental and Consumer Protection Committees in the history of the California Trial Bar. He set up the first Women's Rights Committees, led Los Angeles County Blue Ribbon Committees on Court Congestion. He served as president of the California Trial Lawyers Association, was co-founder of the first Mental Health groups in the State of California and was a 1974 candidate for the Democratie California Gubernatorial nomination.

Committee be trusted by you?

'A personal warning about Jimmy Carter By Herbert Hafif

(The former California State Finance Chairman and Co-Chairman of the CARTER NATIONAL STEERING COMMITTEE)

Man's hardest act is to admit bis mistakes. It is thus even harder for the Co-Chairman of the Carter National Steering Committee to publicly admit his mistaken support of Jimmy Carter.

I, together with so many of the friends who supported my 1974 campaign for the Democratic California Gubernatorial nomination, gave up our personal lives, our funds, and a good deal of our hearts in a successful effort to get the Democratic Presidential nomination for a man we believed represented a decent new force in responsive gov-

Our support was strong enough not to oote the mounting evideoce that the Carter record and the promises did not quite match the image. We blindly ignored the revelations of Stephen Brill io Harpers, on Carter's traits of rnthlessness and the racist nature of the Georgian's 1970 gubernatorial campaign. Even when fellow Georgian Jolian Bond publicly and ofteo said our Jimmy lied, we plowed

We disregarded exposure of the Carter record in Georgia where state employees rose 30% and spending rose over 50% in a single term. And when the editor of the Atlanta Constitution called our Jimmy "one of the four phoniest men I've ever known," we were already too deeply involved in oor effort to believe.

We at the top, after all, were being personally reassured by the candidate himself who spoke poblicly of never lying, who promised to condoct a campaign of love and compassion.

It was thus a greater shock for us to finally see a slipping Jimmy Carter become a mean, vindictive man, using language and tactics designed to destroy the integrity and person of Gcrald Ford, when attacking Ford's policies should have provided tar-

Bot lost in the disgust over such tactics lies the real truth about Jimmy Carter, and his campaign, a truth that I now feel compelled to speak to, and that is the real purpose of this open letter.

It is painful to spend over $8,000 of my personal funds to confess publicly, and in print, that I was wrong, but I keep thinking that if only one of the high-ranking Repoblicans who knew what Richard Nixon was really like, had sacrificed their personal advantage and party loyalty, the rest of us might have been spared the taint of the Nixon

I am a Democrat, and I would like to see a Democratic President, but I am now coovinced that it would be a disaster if that Democratic President was Jimmy Carter. The reason of course, is not because he has promised all things to all people, nor is it because I witnessed such things as his private scheming to get farmers' moncy in California during the primary, only to see his change of position to get the farm worker vote after the primary, but rather the reason is because of one very important fact that most have ignored — independent of character flaws, the man is simply not capable by experience or ability to be President of

Perhaps we have become cooditioned to deviousness and deceit in politicians. Perhaps we can now swallow lustful ambition for public office. Perhaps we can pragmatically coonteoance a hypocritical man who would be our "saviour," when all we are looking for is a President, but can we accept the fact that this man and his small Nixon-like crew have neither the knowledge nor the background to run a broad-based, responsible presi-

It will not be the Democratic party which runs this country, but rather a small clique of people, even more narrowly motivated and far less experienced than the Nixon crew. Hidden bebind the. smiles and hang-loose joking of the small Carter team is the fact that it is a team experienced only in campaigniog with no higher goal, save getting their man the Presidency.

More even than Nixon, here is a man and organization that confuses dissent with disloyalty.

In response to private criticism of staff, racism and intolerance, Carter's response is to get rid of the messengers whether they live in California or Ohio. It is no accident that what TIME'S Hugh Sidey called Carter's "seige mentality" on the press is also applied to members of the Democratic party. Everyone is an "outsider" to these

In the same way that Nixon ignored the Republican party, Carter has ignored the Democratic party. Good people like California Democratic officials Chock Manat and Dick O'Neill are given titles but no delegated aothority. It is no deferent for other ootstanding Democratic leaders. A man who refuses to delegate even minor aothority to good and honorable people, is a man who cannot run a country. Twenty-nine year old "old boys" from Georgia, jealously guarding the palace gates of power are more than reminiscent of Nixon's style, they constitute its substance.

In short, this Coontry is not being asked to elect a Democratic president, bot to elect another imperial president who will promise anything to get elected, bot whose words stand in stark contrast to his records and actions.

This campaign threatens tragedy for the future this country. I oow join with such life-long Democrats as Mimi Harris, who was the chief fundraiser for Senator Cranston and Governor Pat Brown Sr., in saying no to Jimmy Carter.

I apologize to my many friends for my mistake in judgment. I hope this public statement at least partially modoes any damage my prior support may

Referendum is viewed as an indication of the fate of the proposed U.S. Amendment. Despite a lead in the polls, proponents are wary, mindful of defeat last year in New York.

Statewide E.R.A. Faces Key Test In Massachusetts

BOSTON, Oct. 31-Equal-rights advocates and opponents are looking to a vote on a state referendum here on Tuesday for a clue to the fate of the proposed amendment to the United States Constitution.

Ouestion No. ! on the Massachusetts ballot calls for the addition of a sentence to Article I of the State Constitution, the Declaration of Rights, reading: "Equality under the law aball not be denied or abridged be-cause of sex, race, color, creed or national origin." In addition, the phrase "all men are born free and equal" would be changed to read "all people . . . "

It had seemed almost an aftertbought in 1972, when women activists began to drive for ratification of the state amendment after a successful effort to get approval of the national amendment through two successive sessions of the State Legislature. The Federal Amendment seemed destined for success then. It has oow beeo ratified by 34 states, with four more necessary to become part of the Constitution

But last Novmber, state equal rights mendments were soundly defeated in New York State and New Jersey. Defeats Shakes Proponents

It was a startling blow to the proponents of the amendment, made worse because many of those who voted against the bill were women who felt themselves threatened by the changes the women's movement was making in society. Opponents stepped up efforts to block the bill in the remaining states and to rescind passage in states that had already passed the amendment. An effort to rescind the Colorado state equal rights amendment is given little chance of passage.

Thus, the vote on the state referendum bere is being looked at as an indication of the national amendment's future. If the state equal rights amendment is defeated here. In a state widely, if not entirely accurately, perceived as quite liberal, it would be interpreted as boding ill for the national drive.

Local polls appears to show strong support for the amendment. But Ann Kendall, who is heading the drive for approval, worries that "that's what they showed in New York, too."

The measure is, to a large degree, symbolic. A special commission ap-Legislature found passage would necessitate little change

Proponents say that the Massachusetts Constitutioo does oot provide specific guarantees of equality under the law to all citizens, that the amendment would set a constitutional framework for future legislation, and that the Constituution is "incomplete" without it.

Opponents contend that the amendment is a threat to the traditional structure of family life and that it could reduce the protections for women in alimooy and child support

But io the end, votes will probably be cast less on the purely legal aspects of the bill than on the more emotional questions of bopes, fears and self-perceptions. On ooe level it is a gut debate over the oew status gether a statewide organization of more than 4.000 people, and a speakers bureau that has made speeches and debates often six or seven a night at women's clubs. Kiwanis and other gatherings in what they call an "educational campaign." The group has raised about $60,000 through such efforts as selling T-shirts printed with the text of the amendment and bake sales.

The opponents have been less vis ble. A top-E.R.A. rally on City Hall Plaza the other day attracted fewer than a dozen persons, including the police detail. There have been anti-E.R.A. leaflets passed out on the streets signed by Knights of Colum-

Beyond that there are rumors and feelings, vociferously denied by the supporters of the measure but nevertheless in wide currency, that the amendment will result in things like unisex public toilets, homosexual marriages and female draftees. Opposes a 'Restructuring'

Perhaps the most prominent oppo-nent has been Margaret Mahoney, a lawyer from suburban Winchester who says she has been "killing myself, doing five or six debates a day' because of a "moral conviction that I don't want to see society restruc-tured on the feminist model." Miss Mahoney says the measure would "emasculate" men and would "legally restructure the marriage contract" to the detriment of the family and of women. She said the opposition was made up of what she called "unsung heroines" who resent being told they are "second-class citi-

The lawyer, who said she was unmarried only because "no one asked me," contended that the "whole men's liberation viewpoint has had a terrible effect on society."

Jacqueline Basha, the press officer for the pro-E.R.A. group, however, contended that while opposition to the amendment came "from women who feel genuinely threatened by the changes in society." in states that have equal rights amendments. "the people who have benefited most have been the homemakers.'

Vote on Repeal In Colorado

DENVER. Oct. 31-A proposal to repeal the Equal Rights Amendmen: to the Colorado Constitution will be on the Colorado ballot in the election Tuesday, with polls indicating likely defeat for the repeal measure.

The Denver Post, for examole. commissioned a poll in which bus registered voters were interviewed across the state from Sept. 24 to 29. Forty-five percent of all voters responding opposed repeal, 32 percent favored it, and 23 percent were unde-

The Bedford Sports Swap Retains Its Proper Tone

By GEORGIA DULLEA

BEDFORD, N.Y., Oct. 31—At first it seemed as though this year's Sport Swap might turn out to be a bit less tony than last year's which featured a child's white-water kayak, but then a Gordon setter walked in, one of four pedigreed hunting dogs for sale, and everybody smiled.

The Sports Swap, a fall benefit for the Rippowan-Cisqua School, should oot be confused with the Garb Grab, its spring benefit. Although the Garb Grab raises more money, the Sports Swap draws a much bigger family

As Ruth Hensley was saying yesterday, while ber husband, Carl, backled their 11-year-old daughter, Linnea, into a pair of bright red ski boots, "It's a real family affair."

The Hensley paid $10 for the barely used boots, which fetch about $40 in the stores. But even this cost was offset by the money they made selling Lin-nea's outgrown ice skates, 40 percent of which went to the school, according to the terms of the sale.

"And if we don't flod everything we want at this sale," Mr. Hensley said with a patient smile, "we'll go on to the next one and the next one."

Harbinger in Westchester

And there will be mi ering the calendar. The harbinger of wioter here in oorthern Westchester County is not so much squirrels gatherand on consignment from the local stores. But all of it was good. Other-wise, why would the Sports Swap be attracting what were termed "swaplift-

Fathers Stationed at Door

That, according to Marilyn Driver, accounted for the presence of those fathers who were guarding the door and checking out the shopping bags. "You'd be surprised," said Mrs. Driver, co-chairman of the sale, "They'll walk in in a shirt and walk out with a

Happily, except for the two youths spotted slipping out the back way with bulges under their down vests, everybody was very well behaved at the sale, and very well equipped by the time it ended.

Among the most equipped was 6-year-old Patrick Lonsdale, who emerged ready for the bockey rink under a beimet, shin guards, elbow guards and gloves. "I don't know wbether he's ever going to play bock-ey," his father confided, "but for $9 yon can't resist." Eberbard Spiller's children, aged 6 and 8, got soccer shoes, ski boots, snow boots and ice skates. They also got a $3 sled because Mr. Spiller needed it to tow the loot. Uta Schaller, 10, came away with $25 suede riding chaps and a father who warned, "You'll have to pay half." And Edith Hunt, 13, came away with a $60 warm-up suit and a mother who warned, "You can consider it you

Christmas present. "There's this new soccer league on Saturday." said Mary Canning, direct-iog ber husband to a table of $22 soccer shoes priced at $6.

"But hes' not in it," replied Peter Canning, pointing to Josh, 8, Nevertheless, Josh smiled and off they went. Padding Is Found Wanting

On the other side of the crowded gym. Chuck Winter, 10, was testing a $5 National Hockey League table game, which he liked, and an assortment of shoulder pads, which he found lacking in padding.
"They're kind of weak," observed

Cubs.

And Shiela Swett, once a student at the school and now a mother, was trying on a $10 fur-lined suede vest and wondering, "What creature does this fur come from."

"Anyway," said a smiling Mrs. Swett, "It's silly and it's fun."

"Oh mother" mother " meaned Evalue 11

'Oh, mother," moaned Evelyn, 11, "it's just not you."

Over in a corner, another mother was searching for socks. To borrow, not to buy. It seems that Caroline Vincent, came to the sale without any socks. "I can't get her hot sticky feet in these ber mother, Barbara, comskates, plaiced.

Other than that, Mrs. Vincent, chairman of the parents' council, bad almost no complaints. True, she would bave liked to have seen some cross-country skiing and paddle tennis equipment But, then, both are "demon sports" in these parts, and people teod to cling to their paddle rackets and such. Buyers Prove Their Worth

They also tend to cling to their Goron setters. Happily, Mrs. Vincent said, the hunting dogs were sold at $100 aplece to buyers "who had to show the right pedigrees, because these were really pride and joy puppies."

And this was a real community sports swap. "Certainly, it made mooey for our school, but it was also an enormous help to the people," Mrs. Vincent said. "Why, you can't buy a pair of ice skates for less than $35. Here, you can fit your child with oew skates for about $10 and, if your child is only going to skate a few times when the pond happens to freeze over, you can buy a pair for $3."

And next year, when the skates are small, and the air is crisp, you can bring them back and start all over again.

More on Eating First-Class While Flying Tourist

By CRAIG CLAIBORNE

When we expounded recently on our technique for outwitting those airline chefs (traveling economy, we carried aboard a "first class" snack pack that included among other things smoked salmoo and smoked sturgeoo), the colomn elicited interesting replies from a few readers who described their own techniques in similar dealings.

William Moscarelli of Bostoo tells us that when last he traveled out of Scranton, Pa., be ordered a take-out package from a "fine Chinese restaurant" at the Scranton airport. "I was greeted with looks of disbelief and laughter." he wrote. "One stewardess actually told me it was against the law to brine food on board. I, of course, disputed this, and she was mable to prove that such a law existed.

"I oever enjoyed a flight more than with spareribs over Springfield and wor shu opp over Poughkeepsie."

Shortly, for better or for worse, this Bicentennial year can be looked at in retrospect. Already, in this 11th month we have a fairly good overview of cookbooks purporting to celebrate the national heritage.

Only one, in our estimate, is a standout and only recently has it appeared on booksbelves throughout the country. This is the reissue of "Thomas Jeffer-soo's Cook Book" by Marie Kimball, published by the University Press of Virginia. A few months ago, we spent numerous hours in an effort to track down this book while preparing research for an article that dealt with Jefferson's dining habits. The book is a fascinating compendium of recipes for dishes that Jefferson, undoubtedly the nation's first full-fledged epicure, dined on dur-ing and after his days as Minister Plenipotentiary to the court of Louis XVI in Paris.

In our earlier article we discussed and prioted recipes for numerous dishes mentioned in the book, includdishes mentioned in the book, includ-ing meringues and ice cream. We added that one of the most amusing dishes mentioned in the book is pigeons h la crapaudine, translatable as "squabs toad-siyle," crapaud meaning toad as opposed to grenouille meaning frog. The squabs are cut and shaped in such The squaits are cut and snaped in such a fashion that when they are cooked and decorated, they look like slightly comic oversized toads. The following is an adeptation of the squab recipe. PIGEONNEAUZ A LA CRAPAUDINE (Breaded grilled squabs with mustard) 6 squabs, cleaned and preferably with feet left on (sec note)

Salt and freshly ground pepper to cup com or peanut oil cup dry white wine

Imported mustard such as Dijon or cup fresh oread crumbs

13 thin circles, half an inch in dia-meter cut out of egg white slices Black truffles or olives. 1. Preheat the oven to 450 degrees and beat a grill for broiling. 2. If the feet are left on the squabs, trim off and discard the tips of the toes. 3. Use a sharp knife and make small, clean, parallel incisions slightly above and slightly below the point where the leg and thigh bones meet (above and below where the knee cap would be if birds had knee caps). Using the point of a small, sharp paring knife, insert it into the bird's skin on either side of the tail. Neatly insert the base of the feet or legs, bending them as necessary, into the holes thus made.

4. Using a pair of scissors, cut the flesh on either side of the breast—between the oreast and thighs. 5. Open up the inside of the birds by pulling up the breast but leave the birds whole. Using the fingers, pull away and discard the cartilagelike breast bone. Twist the wings of the birds akimbo to secure them. At this point, the squabs should begin to take on the vague form of a large toad with the breast bottom acting as the toad's mouth.

6. Sprinkle the squabs on all sides with salt and pepper and brush all over with oil. Place the squabs, flesh side down, on the grill and grill six to eight minutes, depending on intensity of the heat and proximity to the heat. Turn and grill four or five minutes longer.

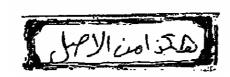

7. As the birds cook, blend the wine and one-quarter cup of mustard. When the squabs are grilled, transfer them. flesh side down, to a large tray and brush on one side with the wine mix-ture. Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Turn the squabs, brush with the wine mix-ture and remaining crumbs. Bake the squabs, flesh side up. 20 to 25 minutes or longer for well done.

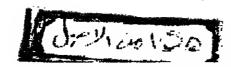

8. Decorate immediately to similate the appearance of a toad. Arrange two rounds of egg white on either side of the breast tips. Arrange two tinicr rounds of truffle or black olive in the center of the white rounds. Serve with small, sour French pickles (cornichons) and mustard on the side, Classically, this dish is served with straw potatoes.

Yield: Six servings.

Ballet: Joffrey Does Balanchine

Robert Joffrey has never hesitated to ask choreographers of genius to provide his company with special ballets. Why ask anyone less? It is a formula that has worked well for the Joffrey Ballet, which presented its first "Tchai-kovsky Pas ce Deux" Saturday evening. Denise Jackson was partoered sensitively by Kevin McKenzie in Balanchine's luscious show-

Over the years Mr. Balaochine has been generous with ballets and the loan of guest stars when needed. Now that the company has been busily developing its owo daocers, he is most frequently asked to lend suitable vehicles for them to be seen in. The "Tchai-kovsky Pas de Deux" is one of several showcase duets that he has created over the years, but it has a special lyricism and bravura that both extend performers and present them hand-

The opening adagio was danced with great attention to detail and placement so that it emerged as a beautiful melding of elegance and restrained energy. Miss Jackson's supple body slipped into the piece as if it were her knowledgeably and carefully.

The variations lacked something of the abandon that is required for their most forceful impact, though the final coda sparkled. It was on the whole a successful reading of the piece, and the duo will surely do it better in the future. The couple danced well together and can look forward confidently to securing their grasp on this lovely ballet.

"Rodeo" another new addition for the company this season, has a freshness and vigor that would please its demanding creator, Agnes de Mille. Beatriz Rodriguez has found a home in the role of the Cowgirl and even after her traosformation ioto a square dancer retains enough of the tomboy to hold the role together intelligently.

Twyla Tharp's "As Time Goes By" holds its place firmly in the repertory and looks as if it will for a good number of years to come. Miss Rodriguez danced the opening solo with the tough glee that made it crackle, and the company presented its flip accents convincingly.

Two Make City Opera Debuts In a Solid 'Madama Butterfly'

Saturday night's performance of "Madama Butterfly" at the New York City Opera featured two firsts-the tenor, Ermanno Mauro, was singing his first local Pinkerton, and the cooductor Gigi Campanino, was making his house

Mr. Campanino, a native of Naples and in his late 30's, has conducted extensively in Italy and is clearly oo stranger to Puccini's score. His leadership was confident and alert, and the orchestra played well for him. Although the big moments-the final section of Four bassists—Mr. Smith, Mr. Hopkios. the love duet, for one—might have been Alex Lane and Richard Davis—then perpaced with greater breadth, he was never less than seosible and efficient, and the same could be said for the singing and

Vote for Carter/Mondale.

We urge all Americans to vote on Tuesday, November 2, 1976, for the Carter/Mondale ticket, America needs Jimmy Carter and Walter F. Mondale because they are committed to:

Restore morality to our foreign policy.

Uphold the Rule of Law - at home and abroad.

Bring openness to our Government and cooperate with Congress and the American people in formulating and implementing foreign and domestic policy.

Support aspirations for self-determination and majority rule of all freedomloving peoples - in Eastern Europe and Cyprus, as well as in Africa.

Provide leadership and inspiration in meeting the human needs of our great country more jobs, a better economy, better education for our children, better and more affordable health care and a real concern for the problems of the elderly and needy.

We support the Carter-Mondale ticket because we believe that they can make America a better place for all of us and they can provide the leadership and inspiration to make America the moral leader of the free world and the beacon for freedon-loving peoples of the world.

Mr. Louis, in his first trip out in the classic dance, has been smart yet conservative. He does at times use point work, but uses it as if he had hardly noticed. He is at his best in his jerkily dazzling solos for Isis, the fate figure, and in the duets (both of them set to the same music but choreographically very different) for Cleopatra with first Caesar and then, in the second act, Antony. The Bacchanale could have been more Bacchanalian, and in particular acrobats introduced here could bave been more acrobatic, yet the choreographic texture of the work is consistently interesting.

Whether the ballet will last in the repertory remains to be seen. It is certainly a generous adventure for the Danes, and a generous adventure, for that matter, for Mr. Louis. It also shows off the dancers—including the crisply moving ensemble—to unusually interesting advantage.

The amused Caesar of Henning Kronstam-his middle-aged delight at Cleo-patra is triumphantly if menopausally projected—and the ardent Antony of Tommy Frishol are both exceptionally well considered and carefully por-trayed. But the women have the best

Mette Honningen as Isis, with her sharp, vigorous dancing, is a delight, yet naturally, the major role goes to Cleopatra and Vivi Flindt. Mr. Louis has not been as creative for Miss Flindt as one would have wished. His concept of a portrait of a woman growing up into the mummified finality of death is excellent. The choreography for this does not always match the image. Miss Flindt deserved a little more. However, having now seen the ballet twice, its importance both to the Danes and to Murray Louis is unnustakable. "Cleopatra" is a challenge accepted, and a promise made good, Modern dance choreography can, as we know, work with classic companies. But here Mr. Louis was very specifically working with a classic company on its own classic terms. The result was not a masterpiece, but it is a ballet, a choreography image of a woman, that lin-gers in the mind. Also, dramaturgically, it is a breakthrough for Mr. Louis, who from now on will surely be able to distioguish between mood and drama, or atmosphere and story.

Mr. Cohen returns to the local scene tonight at the Rainbow Grill atop Rockefeller Center. The elder statesman of the stand-up comedians should be very much at home even 65 floors up. He stands there, relaxed, hald pate glistening, exuding the smiling-eyed innocence of a cheruh as he relates precise, funny anecdotes. Salt? Yes Smut? Never.

Ragtime Program With 7 on the Piano Hits Its Stride Well

By JOHN S. WILSON Special to The New York Times

GREENVALE, L. I., Oct 31-A "Ragime Spectacular" bringing together what Dave Jasen, a ragtime specialist who teaches at the C. W. Post Center of Long Island University, described as "the greatest gathering of ragtime stylists in the world right now," filled the Post Center's Dome Auditorium with a lot of lively and rarely heard piano music yesterday eve-

The seven participants - Joe (Fingers) Carr, Neville Dickie, Bob Seeley, the St. Louis Ragtimers, Dick Wellstood, Dick Hyman and Mr. Jasen-interpreted "ragtime" very broadly, ranging beyond the classic rag era into the piano novelties of the 20's, stride piano and boogie-

Possibly because the abilities of Mr. Wellstood and Mr. Hyman are well-known and frequently on display in the New York area, the two most interesting plan-lsts were two of the least known—Mr. Dickie, an Englishman making his first appearance in the United States, and Mr. Seeley, who rarely leaves Detroit.

Seeley, who rarely leaves Detroit.

Mr. Dickie, using a strong, forthright attack that gave his work an intensely swinging momentum, leaned to the stride pieces of Willie (the Lion) Smith and James P. Johnson, although his version of "Maple Leaf Rag" (a tune each of the pianists played to demonstrate the various ways it could be approached) was an exemplary progression from conservative initial statement to a striding finish.

The heralded "event" of the evening was the emergence from over a decade of retirement of Mr. Carr, a popular recording planist of the 50's. At 66. Mr. Carr is a slim, jaunty man with an effervescent spirit that suffused his razzledazzle version of "Maple Leaf Rag" and helped to gloss over occasional uncertain ingerings in an adventurous program that ningled oleces by Zez Confrey and Paul Hindemith with his own ragging version of "Liebestraum."

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG

The Chamber Music Society of New York started its eighth season yesterday afternoon in Tully Hall, and honored the occasion with a new work composed for it. The work was Stanley Silverman's "Charleston" Concerto, and those who may have had any idea in advance about the famous dance step of the 1920's were disabused when a harpsichord was wheeled on stage.

Charles Wadsworth, the artistic director of the society, played the harpsichord and was joined by a group of the society's regulars-flute, oboe, hassoon, violin, viola, and cello. There was a reason for this combination of instru-

The work was commissioned by the International Society of Performing Arts Administrators and the South Carolina Arts Commission. This is the Bicenten-nial year, and the idea was to create a piece of music that used instruments known to be popular in coocerts in the 1700's. In 1731, Charleston gave the first concerts to be held in this country on a regular hasis.

Mr. Silverman obliged with this short six-movement work. It is a rather curious piece that has not exactly made up its mind what it wants to be. It starts with some of Mr. Silverman's irrepressible humor, with the harpsi-chord playing an Invention as though a child were at the keyboard. Then the instrumental group picks up the theme and comments on it with some out-oftune harmonies.

So far, so good. But the next three movements—an Aria, more variants on the Invention and a Gavotte—are "straight." There is no parody, nor is there any attempt to present this old music in modern terms. Mr. Silverman has merely composed three pieces "in the style of," and done it quite skill-fully, but there is nothing here that any skilled composer could not have duplicated.

The finale, however, is based on a spiritual, and here there is a lighthearted, affectionate translation of old music into modern terms. Sweet and gentle, this part of the score has real charm. Mr. Silverman came on stage at the end and took several bows.

The remainder of the program was more conventional and was played with the acciety's characteristic polish, Jaime Laredo, Leslie Parnas and Ricbard Goode gave a warm-hearted account of the beautiful Schübert Notturno. Mr. Goode and Barry Tuckwell were heard in Schumann'a Adagio and Allegro in A flat, another warm and understanding performance. If ooce there was an uncharacteristic bobble from Mr. Tuckwell, everybody knows how treacherous the French born is, and nobody paid any mind.

Mr. Goode and Mr. Wadsworth gave a neatly-coordinated account of Schubert's "Lebensstürme" for piano four hands. Finally Mr. Goode, who had a busy afternoon, was joined by Mr. Laredo, Mr. Parnas, and Walter Trampler for Schumann's E flat Piano Quartet (Op. 47).

In recent years this E flat Quartet has been pushing the more famous E flat Ouintet from its niche aa Schumann's most popular piece of chamber music. It is in all truth a beautiful work, with a slow movement that can tear the listener apart. The musicians gave it a beautiful performance, one sparked by Mr. Goode's brand of finished piano playing. He grows year by year, and this young American pianist has developed into an ideal chamber music player. He has infallible fingers, style and musicianship, and his play-ing yesterday was utterly flawless.

of characters and, to a great extent, despite Kleist's reputation for psychological realism, the ideas are more fascinating than the characters that embody them.

It is the argument, finally, that ls the play's main interest, and that interest is largely restricted to the last period of the evening as the Elector (K. Lype O'Dell, offering the play's most convincing performance) begins to question his own values, and finally realizes that even under law and order there must be a reward for moral

The play is rather traditional in form and the dialogue (in James Kirkup's translations as adapted by the director, Robert Kalfin) is ornate to the point of being stilted. The work can seem stagey rather than theatrical.

In search of theatricality, and taking a cue from within the play. Mr. Kalfin sees "The Prince of Homburg" as something of a dream play. In this interpretation the Prince becomes an enchanted child, caught up in an approximation of a fairy tale. Despite a very clever final coup d'théatre by Mr. Kalfin, this concept is not satifactorily supported by the staging and the performance.

As is is played by Frank Langella, the Prince's act io battle, which could be attributed partly to his ambition or to his impetuousness, here seems offhanded, almost absent-minded. He is not in control of his will. Yet at other times he is so willful as to verge on being melodramatic—sacrificing a sense of mystery. When he falls in love with his cousin, Princess Natalia, he is not merely headstrong but so awestruck as to seem clownish. Later, begging for his life, he is not simply a man in anguish but a craven coward.

We become too conscious of the production, of letters being written and documeots exchanged. One of the many problems in this difficult uodertaking must be to keep track of all the parchment, quill pens and writing desks. And each edict issued, like road signs, seems to indicate a change io direction. The play remains provocative, but, while one must honor Chelsea for the attempt, the production is ulti-

The chamber program, an all-American event, also offered Paul Lansky's "Crossworks," a quintet with about Debusyan continue that paid specific bomage to Schoenberg's impressionistic Opus 16, a crossroads piece between 19th and 20th-century ways of approaching music. Mr. Lansky's devices included much use of instrumental doubling as well as more complex methods of enrich-ing and developing his ideas. The outcome was an expressive work that one would be happy to hear

John Huggler's "Bittere Nüsse," a song cycle in a Schoenbergian vein based oo poems of Paul Celan, proved notable mostly for its stratospheric demanda on the soprano, handled superbly by Miss Charlston. John Heiss's "Songs of Nature" and John Harbison's "Six Dumbshows" completed the program, the most interesting of the week so far and, in the bands of Richard Pittman and his Boston Musica Viva, one of the more brilliantly played as well.

.The most fascinating feature of the electronic concert at M.I.T. was the amount and that two of the tapes scheduled to be played had been stolen. Two standby tapes were substituted, and one them proved to be a beauty: Tracy Lind Petersen's "Everything and Nothing" (1976). Mr. Petersen, a United States representative, put his own poem through a wonderful series of transformations. Voice timbres were amusingly distorted, singing voices were syn-thesized, and the poem was filtered through French, German and Italian translations with extraordinary inventiveness.

The most impressive ances of this electronic program, however, came from a flesh and (Sweden), "Time Points" by Jonathan Harvey (England) and "Group Variations II" by Benjamin Boretz (United States). In these works one could admire expert application of technology but they also gave off the chilling feeling of impersonality and emptiness that is present in so much recent music and is almost parodied in some electronic works.

The festival's final concerts, on Saturday, brought to light nothing fresh or startling, although Jacob Druckman's already rather famous "Valentine," a love-hate affair for double bass and double bassist, enjoyed a wild success at the hands of Lawrence Wolfe. Ellen Zwilich's tightly writteo String Quartet and Jacques-Louis Monod'a expert but self-defeatingly long "Cantus Contra Cantum II," both world premieres, were among the better pieces. And in a oostalgic attempt to resurrect Jarry and the theater of confrontation, the New England Conservator Orchestra under Conservato Orchestra unde Gunther Schuller performed Voix by Jorge M. R. Peixinho (Portugal).

The idea, not only unoriginal but also unfortunately set down in the program notes so that no one could possibly be surprised, was to keep on performing a phenomenally tiresome, largely aleatory, piece until the audience protested. When that finally happened; half an hour later than it should have, the conductor, the orchestra players and the composer (who was there giv-ing cues) all got up and straggled off the stage. It was a recycling of Haydn's "Farewell" Symphony with a difference: If you delete the joke from Haydn's score it still is

Dorsett and Injuries Are Overtaking Bell in Heisman Race

By GORDON S. WHITE Jr.

John Robinsoo, Southern California's first-year head coach, ordered Ricky Bell out of the game against California midway in the third quarter Saturday. He did not want to risk serious injury to the big tailback, who was running with a couple of nagging injuries. It was a difficult decision for the coach

College Football

because Bell is in a battle with Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh for the Heisman Trophy as the outstanding collegiate footbell player io the nation.

Bell received a hip-pointer in the opening quarter against Oregon State a week ago and had to leave that game. Then he twisted his left ankle oo the third play of the second half while Southern California was beating California, 20-6. Robinson said of the injured ankle: "It was getting sore and he was run-ning less than full speed. Ricky has just had a series of bad luck."

Bell, who gained 78 yards in 24 carries before leaving the game, was forced to relinquish his national leadership in rushing yardage this season. His rival, Dorsett, passed him while gaining 241 yards against Syracuse. Dorsett has 1,313 hards for the season while Bell, who dropped to third place on the national list has 1,154 and and are the national list has 1,154 and 1 on the national list, has 1,154. Andre Herrara of Southern Illinois ran for 185 yards against Indiana State to increase his total to 1,214.

Dorsett set a major-college career rushing record a week ago, and Saturday he became the leading runner in college history, as he increased his four-year total to 5,447 yards. He bas three games remaining.

Shortly after he suffered the hip pointer nine days ago, Bell said: "I would be surprised if I won it [Heisman Trophyl. Tony will win it with so many Eastern voters in his hack yard."

Changes His Mind

Then, during the past week, Bell changed his mind a bit and said, "If Tony Dorsett is going to win the Heisman, he's going to have to beat me." The Heisman Trophy is decided by the votes late in November of hundreds of sports writers and broadcasters across the oation. Each names a first, second and third choice for the award. It has become a campaign prize at times, during which some members of the electorate have employed hullet voting, a method of backing their favorite by leaving the other popular candidate off the ballot altogether.

While Dorsett was adding to his records, Syracuse gave undefeated Pittsburgh a scare or two before the Panthers won, 23-13. In the hig day for Dorsett, the Orange's sophomore quarterback, Bill Hurley, set a Syracusa record for total offense in one game — 315 yards. Hurley, a tailback as a freshman last year, carried 23 times on the option for 112 yards and completed 9 of 18 passes for 203 yards. This broke a 9-year-old Syracuse mark of 265 yards set by Rick Cassata, the quarter-back when Larry Csonka played for

Michigan Still No. 1

Pitt, ranked No. 2, probably beld on to its spot in the polls, but got no closer to No. 1 as powerful and unbeateo Michigan trounced Minnesota, 45-0. The Michigan offense, which gained 418 total yards, and the defense both were superb. The Gopbers never got beyond their own 44-yard line until the last few secoods of the game. But the big question still hangs over Michigan. Have the Wolverines really played a good team vet?

The longest major college winning streak grew to 15 games as Rutgers heat Massachusetts, 24-7. Each of the other four major undefeated and untied teams also won: Colgate beat Boston University, 21-14; Southwestern Louisiana beat Texas, Arlington, 31-24; Maryland beat Kentucky, 24-14, and Texas Tech beat Texas, 31-28.

Texas Tech's triumph may have been its most difficult test on a road to an unbeaten season and the Cotton Bowl, although the Red Raiders still have to play Arkansas on Nov. 27.

Todd Is Off to Winning Start As Jets Turn Back Bills, 19-14

The New York Times

ORCHARD PARK, N. Y., Oct. 31-Shaky at the start, the closely watched new Jets' quarterback, Richard Todd, recovered his poise to avoid major mistakes today, and his teammates on defeose and offense helped steer the club to a 19-14 victory over the Buffalo

It was one of the sloppiest Bills' efforts in years. Todd wouldn't know about that. This was his first appearaoce here. It was, in fact, his first National Football League start as he replaced his hero, Joe Namath.

It was generally believed that if Todd were to do well today, and especially if the Jets were to win, then the pressure would he on Coach Lou Holtz to replace Namath again next week, when the opponents are the Miami Dolphins. Holtz was ready for the question about next week's quarterback. "I really haven't thought about it yet." Laughter, by those near him. "That's right. I haven't thought about

Who's No. I?

Just then, Todd walked past Holtz in the locker room.
"Are you Number One?" Todd was

"No," he replied, reiterating what be said during the past week, which was one of intense pressure for the 22 year old. "Joe's Number One. I just filled

On his second play he was sacked by Ed Williams for an 8-yard loss. On bis third play his underthrown toss was intercepted by Van Green. But said his tutor, Namath, later: "I thought he played an exceptional game, considering the pressure. Today Should help him."

As for Miami, Namath said, "Right now, I'm taking it on a week-to-week

The pressure Namath was talking ahout was not the pressure to win—it was the pressure on Todd to do well as Namath's replacement.

This victory was only the cluh's second in eight games—and both were

Yet, it was hard to pinpoint precisely what difference, if any, Todd made in the game over Namath. The less mobile different. Todd's ability to move, and roll out, did not especially appear to help him today. But he did demoostrate a harder pass 29 carries. than Namath, who had heeo throwing off halance much of the time. This was evidenced when the muscular Todd opeoed the scoring hy lining a 20-yard pass to David Knight on the goal line in the second quarter. Until then, the Jets had done little on offense, with Todd even guilty of the rare penalty of a "false start" by the quarterback—Juring the opposition offside with illegal body movements.

Namath wouldn't have dooe anything

Luckily for the Jets, the young defense again refused to stand around in awe of O. J. Simpson, who had his best day this year with 166 yards on

But Simpson was halted often enough in the first half to force Gary Marangi to throw, and that was a disaster for the Bills. Marangi could complete only 2 of 16 passes in the half in his first start, too. He was in for the injured Joe Ferguson. He could not cope with the winds, or with the Jets' pressure.

Cowboys Outclass Redskins by 20-7

By WILLIAM N. WALLACE Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—Mention Cowhoys and Redskins to a football fan and his immediate association ould be a hattle full of gore and drama with either Billy Kilmer or Roger Staubach leading some kind of late uprising. But such histronics did not uprising. But such instronces the hold come to pass today because the Dallas team, the methodical Cowboys, was too much for Washington. The Cowboys won the game, 20-7, and it was a hland affair, one in which neither Stauhach or Kilmer was around at the Stauhach, the Cowboy quarterback, was watching from the sideline as Damy White, his understudy, ran the offense for experience's sake through the last half of a quiet fourth quarter. George Allen, the Redskins coach, had replaced Kilmer with Joe Theismann as the last perjiod began hecause, as Allen said later, "We weren't moving the half when hed worded for change the ball." Allen had voted for change for change's sake.

"We didn't make one big play," said

Allen, and his Redskin teams live or die with the big play. "Oh yes," Allen added, "Eddie Brown's punt return was a hig play hut it came too tate." A 59-yard return by Brown set up the Washington score, a 7-yard touchdown pass from Theismann to Roy Jefferson with 48 grands left. with 48 seconds left. The outcome had been decided long before. The Cowboys had made a lot of medlum-sized "big" plays and, more important, they had made no mistakes -no lost fumbles, no interceptions. Furthermore they had solved and eventually exploited the Redskins' gambling defensive tactic of hlitzing Stauhach when Roger went into the shotgun passing formation.

Laidlaw an Opeo Receiver

The result left Dallas sitting pretty. The Cowboys, who have lost only to St. Louis in eight games, are o the Cardinals and two ahead of Washington in the National Conference East. Ahead are easy pickings, the Giants, Bills and Falcons, before they play St. Louis again on Thanksgiving in Dallas.

"They're a shoo-in," said Allen with regard to the Cowboys' obances of qualifying for the postseason playoffs. The usually ebullient Allen was down hecause his carefully planned hut risky tactic of blitzing Stauhach—sending the outside linebackers, Chris Hanburger and Brad Dusek, after the Dallas superman-had backfired.

The hackfiring came right after halftime when the Cowboys went 68 yards in 13 plays to a touchdown, their second and scored by Stauhach from the 1 on a quarterback sneak that was more ohvious than sneaky. Along the way Staubach threw two key passes to Scott Laidlaw, a reserve running hack, for 13 and 15 yards.

Laidlaw was a wide-open receiver because his covering defender, Hanburger, was not there hut rather hitz-ing away at Stauhach. "That was a key drive, kind of important," said Tom Landry, the unruffled Cowboy coach. ception in our end zone."

The play came in the second quarter after Dallas had gone ahead, 7-0, and it finished off a Redskin-Kilmer drive that had hegun way back on the Wash-ington 12. "We never let Kilmer get us off halance like he has in the past,"

Wings Beat Rangers, 6-5, On Late Goal

By ROBIN HERMAN

The Rangers scored enough goals to win many a hockey game last night but couldn't compensate for their defensive shortcomings and lost, 6-5 to the Detroit Red Wings in the last

The Wings had taken a two-goal lead into the final period when the Rangers began to assault the Detroit goal, with 15 shots in that session. Walt Tkaczuk scored and Rod Gilbert put in a rebound of Mike McEwen's put in a rebound of Mike McEwen's shot that tied the score with 37 seconds remaining in the game and an extra Ranger skater oo the ice in place of the goalie. The whole Ranger team jumped lonto the ice to hug Gilbert, but the celebration was premature.

Seventeen seconds later, with the Ranger goalie back, Detroit's J. P. Leblanc invaded the Ranger zooe and scored his second goal of the game—the winner. This time the Red Wings resulted owner the heard to calculate vaulted over the board to celebrate.

Rangers Collide

"Our left winger tried to go between their defensemen [Carol Vadnais and Dave Maloney] and the defensemen collided," said Leblanc. "The puck was just lying there. I picked it up, shot and prayed."
"I just couldn't believe it when I saw the guy in front of me," said Gilles Grattoo who had replaced John Davidson in the Ranger net, after two periods, when the score stood at 5-3. When I looked up ice I saw three of our forwards caught up there. Detroit came down three on two. I don't know what to say anymore." He shook his head. "The end of the game typified the whole game," said Davidson. "We got trapped way too much."

Last night's victory was Detroit's first on the road and only its third in 11 games this season. The Rnagers, who have had trouble showing their Madison Square Garden fans a good performance, suffered their seventh loss in 13 games.

New York had allowed the Red Wings to score three goals within I minute 59 seconds late in the opening period by crowding, screening and mishandling the puck in front of their goaltender, John Davidson, Big John had performed

Triple Crown Eludes Keystone Ore

By MICHAEL STRAUSS

WESTBURY, L.I., Oct. 31-Just when it seemed Keystone Ore was going to become the first horse since 1970 to win all three legs of pacing's triple crown, clinch 3-year-old honors and take a giant step toward gaining the horse-of-the-year award, along came Windshield Wiper with a late rush last night to thwart one goal and check the impetus toward the other two.

It all happened during the 21st Mes-senger Stakes before a crowd of 17,400 senger Stakes before a crowd of 17,400 at Roosevelt Raceway. Keystone Ore, the I-2 choice and holder of the world record for a 3-year-old on a half-mile track (1:56 2-5), was beaten by the $11-for-$2 Windshield Wiper by three-quarters of a length in 2:00.

Then to Hollywood Park

The defeat of Keystone Ore in the $161,290 race delayed this aeason's coronations, but the picture should begin to clear at Liberty Bell next Saturday when the two rivals are scheduled to meet again.

After the Pennsylvania trip, the two will face Oil Burner, a third candidate for pacing's 3-year-old-of-the-year honors, at Hollywood Park in California. On the agenda is the $100,000 L. K. Shapiro, scheduled for Nov. 19. Stanley Dancer, who skippers Keystone Ore,

A crowd of 53,502 in Chicago's Soldier Field watched Fran Tarkenton eclipse another Johnny Unitas record yesterday, but more importantly the yesterday, but more importantly the Bears' fans saw their team upset the Minnesota Vikings. Walter Payton broke loose for a 39-yard touchdown run and Johnny Musso fumbled and then recovered on a 3-yard plunge into the end zone for the Bears as Chicago held on for a 14-13 victory over the Vikings, who had been the only undefeated team in the National Football League.

Tarkenton connected on 24 of 46 passes for 272 yards and ran for a 2-yard touchdown bimself, but he didn't throw any scoring passes and the two 24-yard field goals by Fred Cox were not enough. Tarkenton's passing yardage gave him a career total of 40,421. He got almost three times the 91 yards he needed to surpass Unitas's record of 40,239. Tarkenton has already broken Unitas's record for touchdown passes, completions and attempts.

Pass Interference Key Penaity The victory, the first by the Bears over the Vikings since 1972, evened Chicago's won-lost record at 4-4 and cut the Minnesota lead in the National Conference's Central Division race to 21, games. The Viking now have a 6-1-1 mark and the Detroit Lions are tied

The Miami Dolphins' defense, statistically among the worst in the National Football League, apparently got an emotional lift from the rehiring of their defensive coach, who was let go as bead coach of the Giants after failing to win a game this season. The Dolphins upset the New England Patriots 10-3, in the Orange Bowl after they had lost to the same Patriots, 30-14, earlier in the year.

Patriots, 30-14, earlier in the year.

The Dolphins produced their first creditable defensive performance against a contending team. The Patriots entered the game leading the American Conference in rushing offense with 210 yards a game and averaging 155 yards passing. The Dolphins held them to 130 yards on the ground and 112 in the air. Miami'a defensive effort enabled Bob Griese's 16-yard scoring pass to Jim Mandich and Garo Yepremian's 46-yard field goal to hold up for the victory. Don Reese sacked Steve Grogan, the Pats' of the party of the p ouarterback, to stop a fourth-quarter drive and a 70-yard Grogan scoring bomb to Marlin Briscoe, a former Dolphin, was celled back by an offside penalty. John Smith's 43-yard field goal was New England's only score.

"The arry be's not in New York, but I'm glad be's here," said Nick Buoniconti, Miami linebacker who was called out of retirement earlier to try and shore up the Dolphin defense. "I think that Bill's presence has a

Rams 45, Seahawks 6 AT LOS ANGELES-James (Shack) Harris, back in the lineup for the first jury Oct. 11, fired two touchdown passes in the first half while building a 31-3 lead and lifted the Rams back into first place in the West Division. Before he gave way to Pat Haden, the rookie, midway in the fioal period, Harris had hit 14 of 25 for 208 yards and scoring passes of 15 and 20 yards, respectively, to Ron Jessie and Harold Jackson. He was not intercepted. The 45 points were the most scored by the

Rams this season and the most given up by the Seahawks. Lawrence Mc-Cutcheon carried just six times for 33 yards, but scored a touchdown on a 6-vard run before leaving the game with a slight knee strain.

AT ST. LOUIS-Mel Gray hauled in a .77-yard touchdown bomb from Jim Hart with a little more than 8 minutes left in the fourth quarter to tie the score, but Dave Washington, San Francisco linebacker, blocked Jim Bakken's extra-point attempt to send the game into overtime. With 8:18 left in the extra period, Bakken booted a 21-yard field goal that lifted the Cardinals record to 6-2 and kept alive their hopes for the East Division title. Bakken'a kick capped a 40-yard march to the San Francisco 3, followed a fumble by Antherical Cardinals and St. Louis punt Francisco 3, followed a tumble by Anthony Leonard on a St. Louis punt, recovered by Steve Jones. Jim Otis got the ball in position for Bakken with five straight carries. Delvin Williams churned out 214 yards oo 34 carries and scored all three San Francisco touchdowns. The 49ers, also 6-2, fell into second place behind Los Angeles in the West Division.

The miss was Danelo's sixth in eight field-goal attempts this season.

In the fourth quarter, Jimmy Robinson made a diving catch at the 4 of a pass deflected by an Eagle, but three running plays sent the Giants back to the 6, from where, on fourth down with less than four minutes remaining, Morton tried to pass. Incomplete.

In the final minute, the Giants reached the Eagle 9, but the game ended with them on the 13, after Morton had been sacked and thrown two incompleted passes.

Two Offensive Linemen Out This was the game the Giants had to win to salvage anything from the worst start in their history. After five straight losses to teams that gained the playoffs last year, they were matched against a team in their own league. The Eagles, who had beaten the Giants by 20-7 in the second game, were only 1-5 against the rest of the N.F.L. The other victory had been won from the lowly Atlanta Falcons, 14-13.

One Giani said he had not seen the team so "relaxed" all season as it was when McVay sen; the players out with no "speech," But the offensive line was missing two starters—Karl Chandler. the center, out with back spasms, and Al Simpson, the left guard, who be-cause of an injured left knee got in for only a tew plays. And Morton, who got all his plays from the sideline, still did not hand off to Larry Csonka. The fullback carried only seven times, for 21 yards. Doug Kotar gained 77 yards rushing, but the Giants could not run to the outside.

The defense, with two rookies starting, played well. One Harry Carson, made 15 tackles from his middle-line-backer position, and the other. Troy Archer, nine from right tackle, and in the second half the Giants held the Eagles to a net offense of 68 yards. By then, the effort was too late.

Larry Marshall returned Jennings's

line-drive, 32-yard punt 16 yards to the Giants' 39 midway in the second period. Mike Boryla, the Eagles' 25-year-old quarterback, saw Archer in a vear-old quarterback, saw Archer in a linebacking position on a third-down-and-7 play, and sent Charles Young, the tight end, into Archer's territory for a 10-yard pass play. Lauda to Stay as Driver For Ferrari Next Year

MODENA, Italy, Oct. 3! (AP)-Niki Lauda, the former world driving cham-pion, will stay with the Ferrari organ-ization next season, the company said today after a meeting between Lauda and company officials. The Austrian driver lost this year's world championship in Formula One auto racing to lames Hunt of Britain after Lauda withdrew from the final race in the season at Japan because of bad weather conditions.

"Following today's meeting with Lauda, Ferrari announces that the driver will begin immediately the tests for the 1977 season so that he can have time later to undergo piastic sur-gery on his right eye," the company said. Lauda was nearly killed in a crash at the German Grand Prix midway through the racing season.

only one play to do so. In the fourth quarter, Oakland made Denver punt without getting a first down three times in a row until the Raider lead became 19-6. A nine-play, 63-yard drive ending in Clarence Davis's sweep of the left side for tha last 7 yards produced the wrap-up touchdown.

Enter Mann as Raider

This game also marked the Raider debut of Errol Mann, who probably will do Oakland's place-kicking for the rest of the season because of a leg injury sustained by Fred Steinfort. Mann succeeded on his first two field-goal attempts, of 23 and 36 yards, and his first extra-point try, but missed the second conversion.

Denver's points were recorded by Jim Turner. The Broncos marched from the opening kickoff to a first down on the Oakland 6, but after their too-muchtime penalty, go only to the 4 before Turner booted a 21-yarder, The Raiders set up Mann's first one by recovering a fumbled punt, but the Broncos came right back with another drive to another drive to another first down on the Oakland 6. This time, on second and third downs, Otis Armstrong and Jon Keyworth slipped behind the line of scrimmage before Ramsey was sacked, and Turner kicked a 28-yarder.

Oakland drove from the second-balf kickoff to a first down on the Denver 2, but a bolding penalty and a 15-yard sack of Stabler forced Mann to make his 36-yard kick for the 6-6 tie.

Then, Keller went to work on the next series, too, but as a member of the Specialty team. He blocked Marv Bateman's punt, which was snared by Steve Poole, another rookie linebacker, and run across from 7 yards out.

The Jets led by 13-0 when Pat Leahy's extra-point attempt was bobbled by the holder, Duane Carrell.

But Carrell kept his hands steady the next Jets' series and Leahy re-sponded with a 20-yard field goal for a 16-0 Jets' edge. It was their largest lead of the season over anyone.

Largest Jets' Lead

The second-half kickoff was fumbled by the new man, Keith Denson, to set up a Marangi-to-Bob Chandler scoring pass of II yards. Theo the pair did it again on a 9-yarder, later in the period. Leahy, though, preserved the edge with a fourth-quarter field goal of 35 yards, forcing the Bills to go for the touchdown late in the game.

The Jets kept the ball enough in the second half because Clark Gaines, the rookie, produced a second-straight 100 yard game.

This time he gained 119 yards on 24 carries, making him the first Jet rookie since Matt Snell in 1964 to put consecutive 100-yard games together.

· Last 7 Incomplete

Todd's statistics showed 6 completions in 20 attempts, with his last seven passes, in the second half, all incom-plete. He gained 87 yards, was tackled once and intercepted twice.

More impressive numbers were turned in by Richard Neal, the defeosive right end, who had a pair of key sacks of Marangi late in the game, and by Louie Giammona.

Giammooa was returning puots again after being sidelined with injuries and after watching in frustration while Jazz Jacksoo botched many returns. Giammona gained 36 yards on three punt returns.

Nicklaus Wins Aussie Open by 4

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 31 (AP)— Jack Nicklaus, blazing away from the field with a four-under-par 32 on the front nine today, scored a four-stroke victory in the $160,000 Australian open golf tournament.

Nicklaus, winning a fifth Australian open title, took an eight-stroke lead on the froot nine and finished with a one-under-par 71 for a total of 286. His earlier rounds were 72, 71, 72.

Curtis Strange, the American rookie professional and the leader for the first two rounds, was second at 290, two strokes ahead of Maurice Bembridge of Britain "I took advantage of my opportuni-ties to grab a comfortable lead after getting some early putts," said Nick-laus, who won $32,000 "I decided not to start with bogeys like yesterday."

"It may have been my easiest win but I didn't feel I had produced my best golf in Australia even though I still won comfortably," he said.

Fast Start for Nicklans

Nicklaus demoralized his opponents oo the first four holes today with three birdies, sinking putts from five, seven and five feet after his iroo play landed him on the greens with a stroke to spare.

The 21-year-old Strange, a former National Collegiate champion at Wake Forest, has only a handful of professional tournaments bebind him since he turned professional in June.

After a battle with Bembridge today. Strange earned $17,100. He shot a 73 after earlier rounds of 71, 69, 77. For most of the final round, second place was in the balance as Bembridge made a strong challenge, gaining an edge with successive birdies on the 11th and 12th holes. But this was followed by a bogey.

When Strange birdied the 15th and 17th and made par on the tough 18th, he had the second prize check safely wrapped up. Bembridge finished two strokes back at 292 after a final-round

Bruce Crampton of Australia finished in a fourth-place tie with Terry Kendall of New Zealand at 293, a commendable showing since Crampton started with a 10-over-par 82 in the first round.

LRS. ACTS TO HALT COAL-MINE LEASING AS A TAX SHELTER

Move Follows Wave of Offerings That Resulted as Law Ended Use of 4 Other Sectors

By FREDERICK ANDREWS

The Interoal Revenue Service is rushiog to block this season's hot favorite in tax shelters—the leasing syndications for mioing coal.

Late Friday afternooo, I.R.S. beadquarters in Washington seot out a proposed regulation blocking investors from generregulation blocklog investors from generating big tax deductions by paying coalmining royalties in advance. The proposal would delay such deductioos until the coal on which the royalty was paid is sold.

"It will just about kill the coal deals," said Martin W. Helpern, a tax-shelter specialist with the Laventhol & Horwath

After the Tax Reform Act was adoptaues, at least initially.

After the credit markets wavered on Friday, they recovered as the Federal left for high-bracket taxpayers to reap immediate tax deductions amounting to three or four times their actual cash interest and nudged short-term intering system and nudged short-term inter-est rates down slightly. The central bank vestment. Assuming a 50 percent tax pumped money into the system, first by bracket, a taxpayer with deductions twice

Tax Accountants Alert

Internal . Revenue Service an nounced its proposed regulation (which also applies to other minerals) as word of the impending move spread among tax lawyers and accountants late last week.

"It was the most sought-after press release in years," Leon Levine, an LR.S. public affairs officer, said in a telephooc interview. "The lawyers were lining up at the door. The phones were ringing off the hook from all over the country."

The new resulation if adonted as pre-

The new regulation, if adopted as pro-posed, would deny the "up-front" deduc-tion for coal and other mineral lease arrangements emered into after last Thursday. In certain instances, the denial would also apply to lease arrangements before that deadline—specifically where an investor's obligations under a lease contract. "were not substantial or were flusory," the I.R.S. said.

It has loop been normal for owners of

It has loog been normal for owners of coal properties to lease the mioing rights to others in return for royaltles on the coal extracted. It has also been comnion for lessees to pay (and deduct at once) substantial advance royalties—up percent of the expected value of the coal. According to tax lawyers, two earlier I.R.S. rulings had encouraged this practice. The I.R.S. suspended those rulings Friday.

Leverage is Re-examined

The 1976 Tax Reform Act transformed coal leases into sought-after tax shelters by making it largely impossible for investors in four favored shelter areas—farming, oil and gas, movies and equipment-leasing—to reap huge deductions by relying on "leverage," or borrowed funds. A similar overall provision will include coal-leasing shelters. Unlike the new rules for the four specific industries, however, the general ban does not take effect

Under tax law, shelters were built on "nonrecourse" financing: loans that restrict the lender's foreclosure rights solely to the shelter's assets and spare individual investors from personal liability. In coal shelters, for instance, prepaid royalties of shelters, for instance, prepaid royalties of $4 million might coosist of $1 million in pound earlier in the year, can be obtained cash, plus a nonrecourse note for $3 cents, and for types that are partially at a contract of the coordinate of the million. A taxpayer investing $10,000 cash would reap $40,000 in deductions, though he bore no liability for a pro-rate share of the $3 million debt. It is often questioned whether noo-recourse loans are genuine when the lender's only collateral is speculative mining rights. Sometimes the horrowing is secured by a third party's solid com-mitment to buy the coal extracted. In other cases, tax specialists say, the min-eral rights are sold at so great a mark-up that the coal syndicator clears a profit even if the note is never paid. "Whatever they get paid on that is icing on the cake," said Donald M. Tannenbaum, ao accountant with Oppenheim,

GLOOM IS SPREADING AS PROBLEMS GROW IN WORLD ECONOMY

MANY NATIONS FACING TROUBLE

Sluggishness and Unemployment Afflict Industrial Countries -Poor Lands Heavily in Debt

By CLYDE H. FARNSWORTH

PARIS, Oct. 31—In the business and nancial centers of Europe an air of gloom is spreading over prospects for the world ecoomy and its capacity to tackle the mounting problems of debt management, sluggish growth and rising

The highly publicized difficulties of Britain and Italy bave diverted attention from the fact that at least a third of the industrialized countries are in some aerious financial trouble. As one analyst put it, "We're reaching the point of critical drag, without even considering the impact of new oil price increases France, Denmark, Ireland, Finland, Belgium, Australia and New Zealand are among the other countries in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, an economic directorate of the iodustrial democracies, where yellow signals are flashing.

The poor nations of the developing world are in even worse shape, struggling under a mountain of $135 billion of debts, still unable in some cases to feed them-

Looking for Leadership

With the United States preoccupied by the election campaign and all countries seemingly ever more jealous of national sovereignty, analysts say the international leadership that is needed to deal with the problems is lacking.

A European banker waroed that the world economy could be headed into a dangerous sinution unless a new United States Administration grasped the gravity of the situation, "Everyone can see the dangers ahead," another expert said, "but nobody knows bow to avoid them."

In the ricb-poor dialogue still droning on in Paris after 10 months, aiming to engineer a new distribution of the world's wealth, a delegate from India summed up what is becoming a growing feeling of debtor nations, both rich and poor: "We simply don't see any way of paying the money back."

Of the third world's total debt, some $50 billion is beld by private banks in the West. The rest represents the concessionary aid of Western governments and dooor institutions such as the World Bank.

The debt burden of some countries has reached unusual heights. Egypt owes one and one-half times its anoual gross national product, for example. Zaire has borrowed three-quarters of its annual G.N.P.

Britain's sterling liabilities illustrate the problems of a so-called rich country. The official and privately owned funds that foreigners have deposited in London banks are nearly twice the national reserves.

Now the foreigners, mainly the oil nations, are pulling the money out. This has caused the precipitous decline in the pound's value, which in turn aggravates British inflatioo. (The British Treasury figures that for every 4 percent deprecia-tion of the pound, British prices will rise I percent.) Since 1971 sterling has losa half its value in relation to other leading urrencies.

The British now want somebody else to take over the sterling debts. Last week Prime Minister James Callaghan mentioned the United States, West Germany and Japan—the three major creditor na-tions—as likely candidates. Little enthusiasm has been shown for the suggestico in Washington, Bonn or Tokyo, owever.

The increasing debt of rich and poor nations shows that virtually everyone is living on credit. In the last five years nore new reserves have been added to

Squeeze Caused by Rising Costs and Price Curbs

Special to The New York Times

CARACAS, Venezuela — Venezuela's automobile industry, which lost $28 million last year, will be in the red for nearly $50 million by the end of 1976, executives here predict. These losses are being brought oo by a combination of factors, the most important of which is strict Government price regulation on 60 percent of industry production. Industry executives also complain that their companies are being forced to absorb higher costs for imported components, raw materials and labor, and that price controls plus Government credit restrictions on the purchase of oew passenger cars are squeezing them far beyond acceptable limits.

American Companies Hard Hit

Despite these problems, Venezuela's market is seen as one of the richest in Latin America since the country began earning billions of dollars in new petroleum revenues in 1974: Although Venezuela's population of 12.6 million is dwarfed by Latin neighbors like Brazil, Mexico and Argentina, Venezuelans earn the highest per capita income in the region and last year imported goods valued at more than $5 billion.

Particularly bard hit by receot losses have been the big three American auto

The Federal Commodity Futures Trading Commission is about to improve the odds for speculators in com-modity futures options by promulgating three radical regulations.

One will require that sellers of these options fully disclose their markups and other details to customers within 24 hours of the sale.

Another will require all sellers of these options to register with the commission, which regulates commodity futures trading, and the third will name those United States exchanges eligible to trade such options during a three-year test period.

Basically, these options are the right to buy or sell a commodity futures contract on a London market. At present, no options based on any com-modity may be traded on a domestic

However, anyone can obtain such fer them to the public here. This has led to numerous cases of fraud by swindlers posing as reputable commodity brokers.

The frauds prompted one big brokerage house, E. F. Hutton & Company, to stop selling commodity options last

"Although many reputable houses still offer these options, we believe the situation is too fraught with fraud to permit us to participate," ooe E. F. Hutton official said. "But ooce the oew C.F.T.C. rules are implemented in a months, we think the situation wilt be cleaned up so that we may resume selling options."

Part of E. F. Hutton's objection to the present murky scene is the "un-conscionable" markups now being paid by unwary commodity options buyers. Late last week, the prokerage house official prepared the following comparisons of initial costs faced by specula-tors in both ordinary commodity fu-tures contracts and those charged buyers of options. "Cocoa is a prime example," he said.

"A London cocoa contract is for 10 metric tons, and at today's price it is worth about $27,700.

"Normally, the initial cash margin for an ordinary cocoa futures contract is 10 percent of its value, regardless of maturity, which would mean $2,700 for

Put another way, the options deaters cited are pocketing the difference between $2,700 and $3,600 (plus commissions) on every cocoa option sold that day.

It also means that the price of cocoa must move up or down that much, de-pending on whether the buyer has bought or sold an option, before it shows a profit.

Moreover, the options buyer must rely on the probity and financial health of the company or person who writes, or makes available, the option, oot lbe

These rates should give investors a good good idea of what they can expect from the new securities to be sold this week. The Government securities market will be closed tomorrow for Election Day, and the Federal Reserve can be expected to keep the credit markets on ao even keet while the Treasury is selling securities.

On Wednesday $3 billion of three-year notes will be auctioned, and investors may purchase them in denominations as small as $5,000. The exact price cannot be determined before the sale, but in-vestors can purchase up to $1 million of them by agreeing to pay the average of the accepted bids.

On Thursday $2 billion of seven-year notes will be auctioned, and investors may buy them in blocks as small as $1,000 face value. The exact price will depend on the average of bids that are accepted by the Treasury.

On Friday the Government is selling $1 billion more of an issue of 7% percent bonds that are already outstanding and that bave 231/4 years still to run before they mature on Feb. 15, 2000. The 7% percept bonds may also be purchased in denominations as small as $1,000. Investors will also have to pay $19.69 per $1,000 in accrued interest when they buy them.

Investors who buy any one of the three issues must put down a minimum of 5 perceot of their order. If they are paying the rest by check, they generally must do so by Nov. 10.

To purchasa the new issues, investors can order them through Government securities firms or banks or Federal Re-

Based on these considerations, investment analysts reason that this week's new securities will be sold targely to institutional investors and not to individuals.

Concern Over American Motors Lo

By ROBERT METZ

An announcement by the American Motors Corporation last week indicating that it lost mooey heavily in the 1976 fiscal year has aroused fresh concern in Walt Street that the No. 4 auto maker may not survive.

Based on the company's statement, analysts estimate that American Motors lost from $30 million to $40 million in the fiscal year ended tast Sept.

There is irony in the American Motors' plight. A few years ago, American Motors appeared to have positioned itself well in an era of gasoline shortages brought on by the Arab oil

The company's oew Pacer was not only unusual—turtle-like in form with lots of glass and interior room-but also carved out a niche in the compactcar market as drivers, with Government prodding, turned their attention to smaller cars.

The sales of American Motors shot forward, bringing the company a peak 5.8 percent share of the domestic car market in April 1975.

But as gasoline became more plenti-ful, Americans resumed their love affair with bigger cars-leaving American Motors in tha lurch with a toe-noid in a shrinking area of the market.

The company tacked the tmancial resources to move strongly into the production of intermediate and fullsized cars, where the Big Three-General Motors Corporation, the Ford Motor Company and the Chrysler Corporation—dominate.
Furthermore, the Big Three found ways to reduce gasoline consumption of their bigger cars while the Pacer, powered by a beavy six-cylinder en-gine, proved to be less economica: than some bigger cars.

Within a year, then, the market share of American Motors plunged to traditional levels of 2 to 3 percent. causing inventory dislocations and layoffs that might have been avoided had the slump occurred less suddenly.

Meanwhile, the company's stock be-gan to slide. Las! Friday, il closed at on the New York Stock Exchange after sinking to a 1976 low of 3% ear-lier in the day. As recently as early 1974, the shares traded at above 13.

The first issue of Labor Unity, publication of the newly merged Amalga-mated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, devotes its cover page to a photograph of a sports shirted Jimmy Carter talking to four women from the union's local at a sbirt factory in Americus, Ga., 10 miles from his home in Plains. The inscription blazoned across the page says, "I owe my start in politics to Local 226—Jimmy Car-

The story inside tells how the local helped him win his first race for the Georgia State Senate in 1962, It also quotes Oma Barton, manager of the union's Georgia Joint Board: "Jimmy Carter recognizes that unions are a vital force in the community. When he is President, it can help change the whole anti-union etmosphere in the South.

That expectation takes on special significance because the Amaigamated intends to go into high gear immediately after the election on its worldwide boycott against the J. P. Stevens & Company textile empire, a campaigo to which ail of organized labor has pledged support as the key to unioniz-ing the Sun Belt states.

Rail Clerk's Leader Seeks Bargaining Plan

The new president of the 275,000-member Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks is Fred J. Kroll, a year-old Philadelphian, who started his labor career as an accounting clerk un the old Pennsylvania Railroad after graduating from parochial school in 1953. Mr. Kroll, a vice president, was moved up by the uninn's executive board after C. L. Dennis retired because of illness two and a half years before the expiration of his term.

Mr. Kroll said his first effort would be to sit down with all the unions representing railroad operating and nonoperating employees to seek a coordinated program for bargaining on wages and other common issues next year. The clerks will insist, however, on separate negotiations with the rail-roads on job stabilization, an area in which that union believes it has special problems because of the rapid spread of-electronic equipment in its field.

Another Kroll goal will be to promote mergers that will bring all the 15 nonoperating unions into one organizatioo, with the clerks as the foundation store of the united group,

Tom Killeter Named U.S. Trust Chairman

The United States Trust Company an-nounced yesterday that Tom Killefer would assume the post of chairman of the large commercial and investment banking organization today, replacing Charles W. Buek, who has reached the mandatory retirement age of 65.

Mr. Killefer, 58, will retain the posts of president and chief executive officer of the bank. Prior to being named president last April, Mr. Killefer was ex-ecutive vice president-finance and general counsel of the Chrysler Corpora-tion, He was appointed chief executive afficer of U. S. Trust last June.

Mr. Buek joined the trust company as an officer in its investment divi-sion in 1933; became president in 1962; chief executive officer nine years later, and chairman in 1974. He will continue to serve as a director. -

Proposed Offering-Not a New Issue / November 1, 1976

The State of New York expects to sell certain bonds of the Municipal Assistance Corporation For The City of New York described below during the week of November 8 to a syndicate of underwriters managed by the undersigned. The bonds to be offered and the security therefor are described in the Official Statement. The interest rate and investment yield will be set at the time of such sale and the reoffering of the bonds by the underwriters will be made subsequently and only by means of the Official Statement.

$110,000,000

Municipal Assistance Corporation For The City of New York

(A Corporate Governmental Agency and Instrumentality of the State of New York)

1976 Series CC Bonds

Dated: November 1, 1976 / Due February 1, 1993

Principal of and interest on the 1976 Series CC Bonds are payable at the corporate trust office of Citibank, N.A., New York, New York, or at the option of the holder at The Northern Trust Company, Chicago, Illinois, or at Bank of America, N.T. & S.A., San Francisco, Calilornia, unless registered. Interest on the 1976 Series CC Bonds is payable February 1, 1977 and semi-annually thereafter on each February 1 and August 1. The Trustee under the First General Bond Resolution (pursuant to which the 1976 Series CC Bonds are to be issued) is United States Trust Company of New York. The Bonds will be issued as coupon bonds in the denomination of $5,000 each, registrable as to principal only, or as fully registered bonds in the denominations of $5,000 or any integral multiple of $5,000. Coupon and registered bonds are interchangeable as more fully described in the Official Statement.

The 1976 Series CC Bonds will be subject to redemption at the option of the Corporation on and after August 1, 1982 at an initial redemption price of 104% of the principal emount thereof and will also be subject to redemption prior to maturity through application of mandatory Sinking Fund Installments, all as described in the Official Statement.

The 1976 Series CC Bonds will be issued as Refunding Bonds to the State of New York in exchange for the 1975 Series V and AA Bonds of the Corporation currently held by the State. The State intends to offer $110,000,000 principal amount of the 1976 Series CC Bonds for sale to the public through the underwriters pursuant to the offering being made by the Official Statement. In addition, certain institutional investors and State funds have agreed to purchase an aggregate of $143,000,000 principal amount of the 1976 Series CC Bonds from the State.

The 1976 Series CC Bonds of the Corporation are payable out of certain revenues of the Corporation, including revenues derived from certain sales and compensating use taxes imposed by the State of New York within The City of New York and, under certain conditions, the State stock transfer tax. The State is not bound or obligated to continue the imposition of such taxes or to make the necessary appropriations of the revenues received from such taxes. The Corporation has no taxing power. The 1976 Series CC Bonds do not constitute an enforceable obligation, or a debt, ot either the State or the City, and neither the State nor the City shall be liable thereon. Neither the taith and credit nor the taxing power of the State or the City is pledged to the payment ot principal of or interest on the 1976 Series CC Bonds.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO SHAREHOLDERS

On October 5, 1976, Whittaker Corporation announced the effectiveness of an Exchange Offer pursuant to which it is offering to issue $7.50 principal amount of a new 10% Subordinated Debenture Due 1996 in exchange for each share of Whittaker Common Stock tendered and accepted.

On October 28, 1976. Whittaker mailed a letter to its shareholders bringing them up to date on significant new developments regarding the Company which should be considered by shareholders who are in the process of deciding whether to teoder their shares of Whittaker Commoo Stock pursuant to the Exchange Offer, or perhaps to withdraw shares already tendered.

The developments, which have occurred since the Exchange Offer became effective, include: an approach by another company indicating an interest in the purchase of Whittaker's specialized hydraulic device business; a pending two-year extension of Whittaker's health care program in Saudi Arabia at an increased funding level; and continuing weakness in the French economy and recent softening in the domestic economy which further confirm management's concern that the Company's net income for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1976 will be significantly lower than results for the second and third quarters of fiscal 1976.

THE EXCHANGE OFFER WILL EXPIRE AT 5:00 P.M., CHICAGO TIME, ON NOVEMBER 5, 1976, UNLESS EXTENDED.

Should a shareholder desire to withdraw tendered shares, be may do so at any time prior to 5:00 p.m., Chicago time, on November 5, 1976 upon receipt by the Exchange Agent or a Forwarding Agent named below of a letter or telegram requesting withdrawal signed by the tendering shareholder exactly as his name appears on the Letter of Transmittal. The letter or telegram should include the number of shares being withdrawn, the name in which the shares are registered and the serial numbers of the certificates being withdrawn.

The letter referred to above has been mailed to all shareholders of record. Copies of the letter, and of the Offeriog Circular and Letter of Transmittal relating to the Exchange Offer, may be obtained from the Assistant Secretary, Whittaker Corporation, 10880 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, California, or from:

Du Val Joining Talent at Quest/77

By PHILIP H. DOUGHERTY

Philip L. R. Du Val, president of Harper-Atlantic Sales, will be leaving that post to join the already assembled high-priced taleot that will begin Quest/77 a new six-times-a-year magazine in February.

The magazine is owned by the Ambassador International Cultural Foundation that was set up by the World Wide Church of God, a communica-tions-conscious fundamentalist group. The church is headed by Herbert W. Armstrong and his son, Garner Ted Armstrong, the radio and TV preacher.

Mr. Du Val, who will be associate publisher and ad director, will be working with Arthur R. Murphy, publisher and former president of the McCali Corporation and publisher of Sports Illustrated, and Robert Shnayerson, editor and former editor in chief of Harper's and senior editor of Time.

The foundation, based in Pasadena, Calif., is looking for a magazine that is literary and action oriented "with a positive, forward-looking approach that looks ahead not behind," Mr. Du Val said, observing, "Those [the foundation] people are in for the long

It is intended to compete with such thoughtful publications as Harper's, Atlantic, Natural History, Smithsonian Psychology Today and Scientific American.

Quest/77, which will become Quest/ 78 at the appropriate time, "dedicates itself to revealing human greatness, and to doing so with wit, sensitivity and sophistication," writes Mr. Shnayerson in a promotion piece. He notes later that the magazine "relishes life and challenges despair prefers character over notonety, knowledge over fear, effort over sloth, integrity over compromise."

According to Mr. Du Val, who joins the team Nov. 22, the initial minimum circulation will be 150,000 with the ad rates based oo a hlack and white cost per 1,000 of $12 and four-color cost of $18. The cover price will be $2 and the charter subscription, $9. The editors already have their articles planned ahead to the third issue, which will include this upbeat tale, "The Torturer as Victim: Cries of Help From the Men Who Turn the Screws."

Was that written by a clieot? BMW Going to TV

BMW, the quality West German

automobile that increased its sales 60 percent in the first half of this year, and advertised mostly in magazines, will begin a limited use of spot television Nov. 15.

The 30-second and 60-second spots created by Ammirati Puris AvRutick will take a shot at the Mercedes without naming that import. They will note that in West Germany, "the land of legendary driving machines," BMW sells more high-performance automobiles than any other manufacturer. To begin with, the spots will run only in New York and Los Angeles.

The agency, which according to Julian E. AvRutick, president, prides itself on supplying clients with complete communications packages, will also supply the commercials, along with other advertising and promotional materials, to dealers.

When the agency was hired a year and a half ago BMW was selling between 12,000 and 13,000 cars a year. This 1976 model year it is expecting to sell 25,000.

A.P.A., which opened three years ago and went a full year without landing an account, is now billing at the annual rate of $7.5 million. Young &

The Dow Chemical Company is assigning the agency the responsi-bility for Dow Bathroom Cleaner (No. 1 in its field). Saran Wrap and Prevail, a cleaning product in test market. The agency says the billings are $4 million. The previous agency was Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago, which resigned the business because of a product conflict with another client.

The other piece of business, which is moving into the Della Femina Los Angeles office, is Kim Lan Foods of America, which makes Soy Sauce, All-Purpose Cooking Sauce, BRQ Sauce, Meat Sauce and Hot Sauce. The agency, which will be the client's first which will be the client's first, says the account will bill over $1

A lot of sauce for sauce.

Rubicam, where Mr. AvRutick had worked, put up some of the capital to found it, but its equity position has been reduced considerably, he said.

The BMW North America story is not the only tale of success that the agency can tell. There's also the Gold Seal Company story. For its Snowy Bleach the agency came up with a highly competitive and comparative commercial that makes a vivid price comparison between that dry bleach and Clorox 2. It says that it takes more than twice as much Clorox 2 to do the job Snowy does, and asks people who don't believe that statement to write to Gold Seal for proof. The company got more than 8,000 cards. But more importantly, it improved its market share.

P.&G.'s Teaching Aids

The Procter & Gamble Company, the country's top national advertiser, is interested enough in the future of advertising to prepare comprehensive teaching aids on the subject of marketing for the nation's schools. They do not contain many negatives about the subject.

The first kit the company prepared in 1974 was called "Consumer Advertising." The oew one is "Consumer Choice, the Driving Force of a Market Economy." and it comes with a 24-minute film strip and cassette.

According to the company, 26,000 teachers used the original kit. The new one, at $7 each, is available from P.&G. Educational Services, Box 14009, Cincinnati, 45201.

New Products Increase

The DFS New Product News, the newsletter. Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample uses to report on observed product introductions, reports that it caught 102 in September, an increase of 11 over the 1975 month and the most active September at least since 1970. For the first nine mooths introductions stand at 816 over last year's 754.

THE ECONOMIST, Britain's worldwide news magazine, introduces a new U.S. Advertisement Edition effective January 8. At $1,500 per B&W page, it will be one of the most cost-effective media for reaching the topmost echelons of American government, business and finance.

To celebrate our arrival, THE ECONOMIST is sponsoring a rather extraordinary contest for U.S. advertising decision-makers. All you have to do to compete is list in order the reasons why our new U.S. Edition will be such a useful newcorner on the local media scene. First prize includes:

Round trip for two, Washington to London and back, aboard British Airways Concorde.

Accommodations for two at The Ritz Hotel, London, for one week. ■ A half share in the winnings of our thoroughbred race horse, Gipsy Love, when you visit either the Grand National or Cheltenham Gold Cup.

Plus 250 runner up prizes of a brace of The Famous Grouse 90° scotch whisky. And for the advertising ogency with the greatest number of runners up, $5,850 worth of space in the U.S. Edition for one of its clients.

I consider the main reasons why THE ECONOMIST's new U.S.-only Advertisement Edition is an important newcomer to the local media scene are:

A. Low unit page rate: THE ECONOMIST can be added to an existing business press schedule for little increase in total cost. B. Cost-effectiveness in reaching the absolut top-in terms of influence and income-of the business and financial markets (The average income of U.S. subscribers in 1975 exceeded $53,000).

C. Tonicality, quality and unrivated pressige of the editorial product. D. Continuous circulation growth in the U.S. (up 76% in the past three years alone).

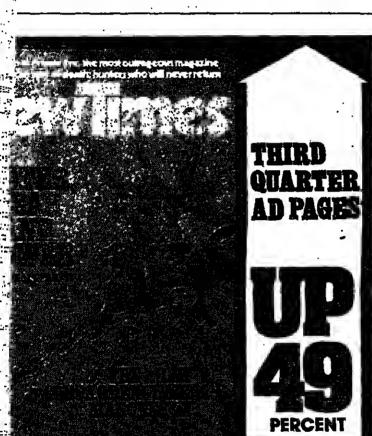

E. Unique coverage of opinion formers, governmens, the highest echelous of business and finance. F. Short advertisement copy deadlines.

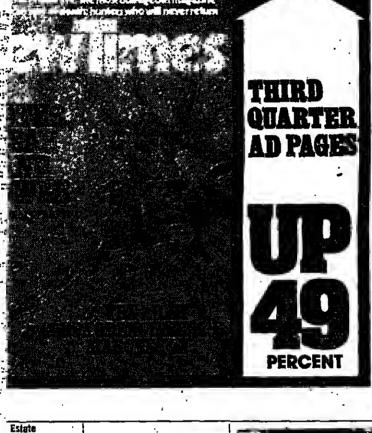

G. 82% of U.S. subscribers devote over one hourevery weekto reading THE ECONOMIST. The

Weather Reports and Forecast

Summary

Partly sunny skies and cool temperatures are forecast today throughout the Northeast. Clear to partly cloudy skies are expected in the rest of the nation except for a few isolated showers in the northern Rockies and rain in the Pacific Northwest. It will be cooler in the Middle Atlantic States, western North Dakota and Mootana, while warmer temperatures will prevail in the lower Dhio Valley, most of the Mississippi Valley and the Central Plains States. Elsewhere will be seasonably cool.

Partly cloudy skles and mild temperatures occurred yesterday after early morning showers in the Metropolitan New York area and the Middle Atlantic States. Rain continued to fall in portions of New England and also occurred in Idaho and the Pacific Northwest. Skies were generally clear to partly cloudy west of the Mississippi River except for a band of clouds that stretched from the Northern Rockies through the central plateau region and into the northern half of the Pacific States,

DETROIT TO GET FUNDS FOR RAPID TRANSIT

But $600 Million Federal Grant Requires Equal Investment by Businessmen Along Route

Special to The New York Times DETRDIT, Dct. 31-Federal transportation officials, to what one of them termed "a major oew departure" in policy, have commtted $600 million for a rapid transit system in southeastern Michigan to be used as a rallying point for urbao revital-

Robert E. Patricelli, administrator of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, said in an interview that the commitmeet reflected a shift to a broader view of Federal transportation objectives Rather than approving graot applica-tions simply on the basis of projections of ridership and costs, Mr. Patricelli said. the transportation agency is increasingly concerned with the overall implications of a transit system. He cited Detroit's crime problems and the city's deteriorating tax base as crucial factors in the decision to make the commitmeot. The most uousual and cootroversial of several conditions attached to the $600 million Federal commitment is the requirement that Detroit's business community pledge to invest an equal amount in development along the proposed routes of the transit system.

The Secretary of Transportation William T. Colemao Jr., io a letter to Gov. William G. Milliken, a Republicao, and Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young, a Democrat, described the Federal transit commitment as one in which all parties

Donald Trump was in the headlines in 1973, when the Department of Justice brought suit in Federal Court against the Trump Organization, charging discrimination against blacks in apartment rentals. Mr. Trump denied the charges, and later signed an agreement to provide open-housing opportunities for minority groups.

'We never discriminated against blacks," Mr. Trump said angrily. "Five to 10 percent of our units are rented to blacks io the city. But we won't sign leases with welfare clients unless they have guaranteed income levels, because otherwise, everyone immediately starts leaving the building."

'He Has Great Vision'

Mr. Trump, a glib, nonstop talker, suddenly turned quiet when he stopped at the Trump Organization's head-quarters, at 600 Avenue Z in Brooklyn, to consult with his father. Face to face, the soo seemed affectionately intimi-dated by the older man.

"I gave Donald free rein," Fred C. Trump sald in his office. "He has great vision, and everything be touches s to turn to gold. As loog as he has this great energy in abundance, I'm glad to let him do it."

"Energy is a word that frequently pops up io discussions about Docald Trump. Besides being a fast talker, he is a fast walker, a fast eater, a fast business dealer, and gives the distinct impression of being an early candidate for a cardac arrest, Some of this energy, be said proudly could be

Harry B. Helmsley of Helmsley-Spear Inc., said that although he had never had any dealings with Mr. Trump, he found him to be "very active around town: I just hope he can put his deals Even Preston Robert Tisch, president of Loews Corporation, who is regarded as Mr. Trump's No. 1 critic in the city spoke highly of the young promot-er: "He's a very bright, capable realestate man.

Real-estate insiders say Mr. Tisch and Mr. Trump are at odds for two reasons the Commodore Hotel tax abatement deal (Mr. Tisch's company owns hotels), and the 34th Street convention center site (Mr. Tisch was long associated with the rival 44th Street conventioncenter site).

Criticism of Mr. Trump came maioly from mortgage bankers and others in the money end of the real-estate industry, all of whom requested anonymity.

Another moneyy man called Mr. Trump "overrated" and "totally obnoxious," and said much of his influence bad to do with the fact that he was an early financial supporter of both Governor Carey and Mayor Beame and had a powerful lawyer (Roy M. Cobn) and a powerful public relations man (Howard Rubinstein).

Lunch at '21' Club

Mr. Trump has been meeting the right people. During lunch at the "21" Club, the waiters were bowing and "Hello Donald," and other saying. lunchers, including Mr. Helmsley and assorted politicians, stopped by to say

Mr. Trump took exactly one hour for lunch, during which he are broiled filet of sole with no butter, drank ginger ale, and chatted with two men representing the National Jewish Hospital io Denver, which plans to name bim their Man of the Year on Dec. 8 at a dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

"I'm not even Jewish, I'm Swedish," he said later. "Most people think my family is Jewish because we own so many buildings in Brooklyn. But I guess you don't have to be Jewish to win this award, because they told me a gentile won it one other year."

Mr. Trump spent a profitable after-noon, earning a $140,000 commission for about 20 minutes' work selling part of a housing project for a friend. A witness to the negotiations said Mr. Trump was a hard-nosed broker, refusing to budge from his original terms of $1.4 million paid over a four-year period at 9 percent interest.

'Extremely Aggressive'

The transaction took place at the ar-chitectural offices of Poor, Swanke, Hayden & Connell, at 400 Park Avenue, where Mr. Trump had gone to visit Der Scutt, the architect of his proposed $90million convention center.

"Donald's very demanding," the pipepuffing Mr. Scutt said when the promot-er was out of the room. "He thinks Sunday and saying, 'I've got an idea. See you in the office in 40 minutes.'

And I always go." When asked whether he thought Mr. Trump had any shortcomings, the architect replied: "He's extremely aggressive when he sells, maybe to the point of overselling. Like, he'll say the conventioo center is the biggest in the world, when it really isn't. He'll exaggerate for the purpose of making a

The architect broke into a hig smile. "That Dooald," he said admiringly, "he could sell sand to the Arabs and refrigerators to the Eskimos."

Mr. Trump is single, with no plans of getting married in the near future, al-though he said be was seeing one woman - a fashion model - fairly regularly. He has been spending more and more of his time in the Los Angeles area lately, staying in a bouse that he owns, complete with swimmiog pool and tennis court, in Beverly Hills.

Is there any danger that Donald Trump will defect to the West Coast? "Some of the best deals I've made have been land deals in California," he said with a smile. The people passing by the chanting group of Hare Krishna religious devotees had never seemed threatening to Merylee Kreshower, one of the chanters, as she danced and celebrated the oame of God within the strangely joyous, saffron-robed sidewalk throng. But now the people, hy way of their elected representative, the Queens District Attorney, have taken sides and charged that Merylee has been hrainwashed by her religious leaders, a victim of "mind control" at the age of 24 years.

The charge is "ludicrous" to Miss Kreshower, who has no wish to return to the past she left two years ago as a Manhattan secretary and Queens College student. But after two weeks of having been held as a material witness having been field as a material witness by the courts against her will and, before that, having been kidnapped, she says, by professional "mind deprogrammers," she is prepared to persevere until she is restored to the simple place she wants as a worshiper and resident in an urban temple built around 5,000-year-old notions of God.

The case is an extraordinary one because here in middle-class Queens, it cause here in middle-class Queens, it poses ooe of the country's founding issues, religious freedom, agaiost ooe of its perpetual concerns, parental care. And in the process it seems to get at whatever disturbing suspicions ordinary pasers-by might have at the sight of the distractiog, monkish, bands of religious beligiars who stand like have. ligious believers who stand like happy aliens in the middle of the city's great commercial tides of pedestrians.

The prosecutor in the case, Assistant District Attorney Michael Schwed, has spoken clearly of hopiog to create a legal precedent for the use of parents worried that their offspring have gone off to "brainwashed" lives. "The thing that frightens me," Mr. Schwed has said, "is that a group like this or any other group can use mind control to create an army of zombies or robots who could undermine the government and law enforcement."

But ooe era's "captive" can be a later era's saint, critics of the charge say, noting, for example, that Francis of Assisi and Thomas Aquinas stirred strong resistance from disappointed parents, and social clamor, too, in the case of Francis, when they launched their saintly vocations. Ira Glasser, a partisan in his role as head of the New York Civil Libertles Union, likes to cite more recent history when he recalls some heart-struck Jewish parents sitting shivah over offspring who weot off to marry Christians. Whatever the outcome of the charges, and the reader's opinioo of the Issue, the case undeniably is rooted in the miod of Miss Kreshower and of a second alleged brainwashing victim, Edward Shapiro, who, at 22 years of age, has been taken by his pareots back to Massachusetts for treatment in a mental hospital where he also is fighting to return to the temple.

Were they brainwashed? "Certainly oot, that's ludicrous," Miss

Kreshower said in an ioterview after a judge had dropped the material-witness order that kept her for two weeks in a Howard Johoson's motel at Kenoedy International Airport, where she performed her chants and religious duties each day under the deafening flight paths of jetliners, "My mother got the idea I was brainwashed. She can't accept the fact of my developing a love for God."

Miss Kreshower, who has lived apart from her parents since she was 20, said her mother had her kidnapped after setting up a doctor's appointment back in the Fresh Meadows neigbborhood where her pareots still reside. Mr. Schwed, the prosecutor, coocedes she was takeo from the street by people working in behalf of ber mother, but be notes that the grand jury did not view this as kidnapping. Miss Kreshower, who got loose five days after being takeo, does. She and her lawyers feel the grand jury process was used to turn her initial complaint 180 degrees so that, ultimately, two leaders of her temple were indicted for what Mr. Schwed terms "unlawful imprisonment through mind control," an unprecedented charge, he agrees. There is also a charge that money was demanded of pareots in one instaoce by a Hare Krishna leader, a charge that has been

Mr. Schwed says that religious freedom itself is not part of the miod-control allegations and that this will be demonstrated in court. Mr. Glasser says the prosecutor has made "a laughing stock" of his office by taking sides with pareots trying to regain cootrol of the lives of sons and daughters in their 20's and 30's. He feels the indictment was made possible, in part, be-cause there may be less public sympathy for Eastern religions thao for more familiar Judeo-Christian religions, which have their own monasteries, cbants and dictates about life from

"My mother says she was acting in the best interests of my health and happiness," Miss Kreshower says. "I've tried to explain I've oever felt healthier and happier. The purpose of life is to Inquire into absolute truth. That's what

"Love is voluntary," she said, adding that in her religion, "it's called surren-der to God. Nobody forces us. That's why there's love there."

Having heeo beld against her will by two different strains of authority— parental and state—Miss Kreshower is oot entirely free. She can oot return to oot entirely free. She can oot return to live at the Hare Krishna temple until the case is settled, so her own religious freedom is abridged in the meantime. The closest she has come to brain control, she said, was when the "deprogrammers" were shunting her from motel to motel for five days, asking her to recant. "It's a simple issue," she said. "Nobody can make me change my mind."

That large map behind John Chancellor and David Brinkley is something very new.

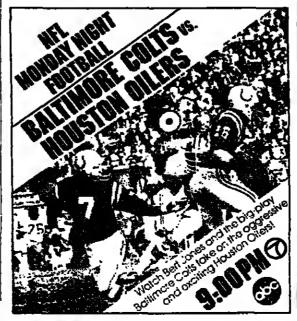

It's a 14-by-24 foot wonder-board whose multi-colored lights will reflect NBC News' state-bystate projections as the vote rolls in.

It'll be a great aid to the viewer. And it's not the night's only innovation. This year, for the first time, vote totals will be flashed electronically from our computers directly to home screens -a system that will provide faster, clearer balloting results than ever before.

Still, the heart of NBC News coverage will be the reporting of John Chancellor, David Brinkley Catherine Mackin, Tom Brokaw and the entire NBC News team. Their work in the Primaries and their reputation for all-around excellence precedes them.

On a night for totals you'll get the total picture. when you count with—and count on—the people and the technical know-how of NBC News.

YOTE TOMORROW.

This message was created for display on buildtin opards in our agency. It was to remind our people that voting is not a right, not a privilege, but a responsibility of citizenship. It appears here in the belief that dimers will also find these words of Edmund Burke a strong and timely reminder of a basic principle.
